BATTLE ROLLS BACK FROM BELGIAN COAST

RUSSIA DECLINES APOLOGY OF TURKEY; CAUCASIANS ARE ORDERED TO ATTACK TURKS

Foreign Minister Sazanoff Says It Is Too Late to Renew Pour Parlers—Caucasian Populace Unanimous for Russia Against Their Common Enemy

London, Nov. 3.—A Reuter dispatch from Petrograd says: "In reply to a telegram from the Turkish grand vizier expressing regret the rupture of the good relations existing between Turkey and Russia, owing to an attack by the Turkish fleet, Sergius Sazanoff, the Russian minister of foreign affairs, denied that the Russian fleet was the first to fire, and said he feared it was too late to enter into pour parlers of any kind with Turkey."

A dispatch from Tiflis, capital of the Russian government of the same name in Trans-Caucasia, to Reuter's says: "It is announced that the emperor has ordered the Caucasian army to cross the frontier and attack the Turks."

British Forces Are Ready in Egypt.

A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Cairo, Egypt, says: "Turkish troops are reported near the border which they have not crossed. The British are fully prepared to repulse an invasion, thanks to the measures taken by the government."

"The public in Egypt is calm and not even aware of a Turkish-Russian rupture. A press censorship will be established to-morrow."

Expression of Loyalty From Tiflis.

Petrograd, Nov. 2.—A dispatch from Tiflis, capital of the lieutenantcy of Caucasia, says: "The city council met in an extraordinary sitting on the occasion of the beginning of the war with Turkey in Caucasia. The Russian, Georgian, Armenian and Moslem councillors asserted unanimously the solidarity of the various nationalities constituting the Caucasian population in the desire to repulse the enemy of their common fatherland."

"The sitting terminated with cheers from all present. The councillors decided to ask the governor of Caucasia to tender to the emperor an expression of their respect and loyalty."

AKABAH SHELLED BY BRITISH SHIP, ARMED FORCES DRIVEN OUT.

London, Nov. 3.—The fortified town of Akabah in Arabia, on an arm of the Red Sea, has been shelled and occupied by the British cruiser Minerva. There was some loss to the troops holding the position, but no British casualties. Akabah is at the head of the gulf of Akabah, 150 miles east of Suez.

The admiralty announced this occurrence as follows: "Upon arriving at Akabah the cruiser Minerva, Captain Percival Warleigh, found the place occupied by soldiers and armed natives. One of the soldiers had the appearance of a German officer."

"The Minerva then shelled the port and the troops, the town was evacuated, and landing parties from the Minerva proceeded to destroy the forts, the barracks, the post office and the stores."

"There was some loss to the enemy, but no British casualties."

PERSIA AND TURKEY HAVE NO ALLIANCE

Berlin Says Italy Need Not Feel Uneasy Regarding Position in Tripoli.

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 3.—All Egypt from to-day is placed under martial law. Major-general Sir John Grenfell Maxwell, commanding the forces in Egypt, has published a proclamation to the effect that the British government has ordered him to take charge of the military control of Egypt and to insure protection.

Petrograd, Nov. 3.—The Persian legation here declares that no alliance exists between Turkey and Persia. All rumors of such an alliance in the Russian and foreign press, it is stated, are without foundation.

Berlin, Nov. 3.—Turkey, according to an official announcement made in Berlin to-day, has pledged her word not to attempt an Islamic movement in Libya and therefore there is no cause for Italian uneasiness regarding Tripoli.

WESTERN RECRUITS FOR REGIMENTS AT MONTREAL

Montreal, Nov. 3.—It was announced to-day that 500 recruits from the western provinces would be sent to the front. The recruits would be divided among the two regiments being raised in Montreal for the second contingent. Recruiting continues to go on rapidly here.

SERGIUS SAZANOFF RUSSIAN DIPLOMAT

RUSSIA WILL PUNISH FOE OF FATHERLAND

Imperial Manifesto Issued in Petrograd Says Turkey is Insolent

London, Nov. 3.—An Imperial manifesto on the outbreak of the war with Turkey has been issued in Petrograd, according to the correspondent of Reuter's in the Russian capital. It reads as follows: "In the struggle against Russia, Germany and Austria have incited Turkey into taking arms against this empire. Immediately after the treacherous attack of the Turkish fleet, the Russian ambassador received orders to leave Turkey. Russia will receive this fresh aggression on the part of an ancient persecutor of the Christian religion and the Slav peoples with tranquility and confidence in God. The valiant armies of Russia will triumph once again not for the first time, over the Turkish hordes."

"Once again we will show how to punish the insolent foe of our fatherland."

"Our confidence is unshakable that the ill-advised intervention of Turkey will only hasten the fatal issue to that empire and will open the way for Russian settlements of problems on the Black Sea coast which have been handed down by our ancestors."

HAMBURG MANUFACTURER STARTS UP IN HOLLAND

Says His Goods Are of Neutral Manufacture and Seeks Business.

Ottawa, Nov. 3.—The methods employed by German manufacturers to circumvent the prohibition of trade imports caused by the war, are varied and ingenious and are the object of serious consideration. The latest instance of this has been brought to the attention of the customs in the shape of a circular from an individual whose former place of business was Hamburg, Germany. It states that he has now moved his headquarters to Holland. The goods of the firm, it declares, are of strictly neutral manufacture.

GERMAN CRUISER GEIER MUST LEAVE HONOLULU

Washington, Nov. 3.—The Japanese embassy here was notified late to-day by the state department that the German cruiser Geier, which has been at Honolulu for more than two weeks making repairs would be given until a certain date either to leave the port or to intern during the war.

The date is being kept secret because it would be contrary to neutrality in such a case to put the Japanese cruisers lying in wait for the Geier outside Honolulu harbor in possession of the date of her departure.

Two German officers and two enlisted men from the Geier, who landed yesterday in San Francisco will be interned in the United States.

GERMAN CONSUL ASSAULTED.

Washington, Nov. 3.—The German consul at Tabriz, Persia, was assaulted and took refuge in the American consulate with other panic-stricken German subjects, according to a message to the American government late to-day from Minister Caldwell at Teheran.

Retreat in Belgium of Enemy Is Told in Official Account

Paris, Nov. 3.—The French official announcement given out this afternoon says the Germans have completely abandoned the left bank of the Yser downstream from Dixmude and that troops of the allies have reoccupied points on the river without great difficulty.

The text of the communication follows: "On our left wing the enemy seems to have completely abandoned the left bank of the Yser downstream from Dixmude, and reconnaissance by troops of the allies undertaken on the highways in the inundated regions were successful in re-occupying points of passage across the river without great difficulty."

"To the south of Dixmude and in the direction of Gheluyt our advance was particularly perceptible."

"In the region to the north of the Yser in spite of determined attacks by the Germans in considerable force, our front was everywhere maintained or re-established by the end of the day."

"Fresh attacks by the Germans on the environs of Arras and against Lihons and Lequesne en Santerre resulted in failures."

"On the centre in the region of the Aisne to the east of the forest of Aigne we have made some progress. To the east of Valley, according to the latest news, those of our troops who held the positions on the slopes of the plateau to the north of the villages of Chavonne and Souhir, had been compelled to draw back into the valley to the east of this locality. We have maintained our positions at Amont, on the right bank of the river."

"There was violent cannonading during the day between Rheims and the Meuse, as well as on the heights of the Meuse."

"Further efforts on the part of the Germans in the forest of Argonne have been checked."

Havre, Nov. 3, via Paris, 5.05 p.m.—An official communication given out by the Belgian general staff and dated November 2, 9.15 p.m., says: "The enemy has fallen back towards the east, abandoning his dead and wounded."

"Our troops are holding the positions occupied yesterday."

"Our advance forces, which moved toward the Yser, are finding everywhere signs of precipitate retreat."

BRITISH SHIP IS SUNK IN PACIFIC

(Bulletin 3.30 p.m.)

Valparaiso, Nov. 3.—The German warships Gneisenau, Scharnhorst, Nuernberg, Leipzig and Dresden to-day attacked the British fleet off Coronel, Chile. The British cruiser Monmouth was sunk. The cruiser Good Hope was very badly damaged, and as she was on fire is supposed to have been lost.

The British cruiser Glasgow took refuge in the harbor of Coronel, and is now bottled up.

The German ships Scharnhorst, Nuernberg and Gneisenau anchored at midday to-day in Valparaiso harbor undamaged.

OCTOBER CUSTOMS ARE MILLION DOLLARS LESS

War and Movement of Troops Has Effect on Importations to Canada.

Ottawa, Nov. 3.—Canadian customs revenue for the month of October will show a falling off of over a million dollars. This is partly attributed to the general falling off of trade on account of the war. It has been attributed partially to the fact that thirty-one vessels plying in the Canadian Atlantic trade were used as transports for the Canadian troops and were off the route. So far as trade is concerned for nearly a month the effect of this may be gathered from the fact that 80 per cent of Canadian imports from across the Atlantic would come via Canadian ports during October.

GERMAN CROWN PRINCE SERIOUSLY WOUNDED

Geneva, Switzerland, Nov. 3.—Travelers who arrived here Monday from Strassburg say that Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany was seriously wounded in the fighting in France, and that he has been taken to the palace at Strassburg and placed under the care of specialists from Berlin.

GERMANS UNABLE TO BREAK THROUGH ARE TO TRY NEW ATTACK

Firing Concentrated To-day Along the River Yser for the Purpose of Covering Movement of Enemy's Troops to More Southerly Point

All Efforts to Take Coast Route to Calais Have Failed and Assault at Ypres Has Been Crushed Decisively by Allies

London, Nov. 3.—"Heavy fighting is reported to-day along the Yser, apparently to cover the movements of large bodies of troops in a southerly direction," says a Rotterdam dispatch to the Times.

"The Germans, with ammunition wagons and guns, marched from Bruges to Courtrai to-day," the correspondent continues, "and there is pronounced activity among the British airmen. It is stated three German staff officers were killed by a bomb dropped at Thielt, fifteen miles southeast of Bruges."

"Following the fierce attack along the Yser the German main force is evidently making a desperate effort to break through to Calais by a more southerly route."

German Assaults Along Aisne Futile.

The tumult of battle has rolled back from the Belgian coast, and after the failure of their fierce assault on the British and Belgian lines around Ypres, the Germans are diverting their attack toward a more southerly point. Much activity on the part of German mobile columns is reported from Belgium, and there is evidence that the Germans will try again to cut their way through to Calais. The German assault at Ypres has been crushed decisively at great cost to both armies.

Concerning the situation along the river Aisne reports from Berlin and from Paris are contradictory. The Germans declare they have made progress, while the French assert that all the German assaults have failed completely. In the eastern arena the Russian right wing, which rests on the frontier of East Prussia, evidently has been sustaining attacks from the Germans. In the meantime the Austrians, hundreds of miles away, are against the Russian left wing. Reports of the fall of Przemyśl are declared by Petrograd to be premature and due to the capture of 4,000 men of the Przemyśl garrison, together with a large amount of arms and equipment when a sortie was attempted.

Paris, Nov. 3.—Confidence is growing here that the latest offensive movement of the Germans in Belgium, whereby they hope to gain a clear route to the French channel ports will fail. All reports here are that the allies have successfully withstood repeated and violent attacks. The official statement of the Belgian general staff indicates a shift in the scene of the German attack from the north coast, where the British held the line.

The news of the French success around Ste. Marie-Aux-Mines and Ste. Die, in the Vosges region, was eagerly received here. The developments in this quarter have assured the French of a solid position in a difficult region, where it is expected they shortly will win a greater success.

The allies have occupied the village of Paschendale, 11 miles northeast of Ypres, after terrible fighting, as a result of which the Germans were forced to quit their trenches by the British, who took many prisoners, according to officers arriving from the front.

Around La Bassée the engagement continues, but the allies have not ceased advancing surely, though slowly. Fierce fighting is proceeding in the neighborhood of Lens and Arras. The allies in the vicinity of Lequesne-Santerre are strongly entrenched and have successfully beaten off the efforts of the Germans to make a breach in their lines.

Sergeant Godson, the well-known football player, has been decorated on the field of battle with the emblem of the Legion of Honor as a reward for taking command of several batteries of artillery after all the other officers were killed or wounded, and standing a German battery. The general congratulated him before the army.

AUSTRIAN AEROPLANES FLY OVER ANTIVARI

Paris, Nov. 3.—In a dispatch from Cetinje dated yesterday the correspondent of the Havas agency says that three Austrian aeroplanes on November 1 dropped a number of bombs at Antivari in an endeavor to strike a French transport ship and the three torpedo boats escorting her. None of the missiles struck its mark.

Ten of them struck the quay but did only slight damage. Others fell in the vicinity of the palace of the prefecture without causing any damage. Shots from the French torpedo boats and the batteries on the heights compelled the aeroplanes to flee.

KAISER'S GAME PRESERVE CAPTURED BY RUSSIANS

London, Nov. 3.—The Star publishes a dispatch from its Petrograd correspondent, dated November 3, says that the Russians are now securely established inside the East Prussian frontier.

Emperor William's thirty miles of barbed wire fence around his big game preserve at Rominten, the correspondent goes on, is now in the possession of his enemies.

OLYMPIC AT BELFAST SAFE FROM DANGER

London, Nov. 3.—The safe arrival of the White Star liner Olympic at Belfast has caused much relief here. The detention of this vessel at Lough Swilly, in the north of Ireland, gave rise to many rumors of disaster to the great liner and her narrow escape from the mine field. To-day, the drastic mine policy of the British admiralty is meeting with general approval. The new mine regulations close the North Sea. Navigation which normally follows North sea routes will be diverted to the English channel.

THREE AMBASSADORS LEFT CONSTANTINOPLE SUNDAY

Washington, Nov. 3.—The Turkish minister of war ordered detained a special train bearing British and French subjects from Turkey which Ambassador Morgenthau had arranged on Sunday to leave Constantinople.

The cablegram from the American ambassador revealed that the British, French and Russian ambassadors finally got away from Constantinople on a special train at 12 o'clock midnight Sunday.

LATE NIGHT WAR NEWS

NORTH SEA MILITARY AREA DANGEROUS

Action Taken by Admiralty Follows Sowing Mines by Germany's Ships

London, Nov. 2.—The entire North sea has been declared a military area, and merchant vessels entering it will be exposed to the gravest dangers from the mines and from the warships which are searching vigilantly by night and day for suspicious craft.

This action has been taken as a reply to the laying of mines by the Germans in the waters north of Ireland.

The secretary of the admiralty to-night made the following announcement of the closing of the North sea to traffic:

"During the last week the Germans have scattered mines indiscriminately in the open sea on the trade routes from America to Liverpool, via the north of Ireland.

"Peaceful merchant ships have already been blown up, with loss of life, by this agency. The White Star liner Olympic escaped disaster by pure good luck, and but for warnings given by British cruisers other British merchant ships and passenger vessels would have been destroyed. These mines could not have been laid by any German ship of war. They have been laid by some merchant vessel flying a neutral flag, which has come along the trade route as if for purposes of peaceful commerce, and while profiting to the fullest by the immunity enjoyed by neutral merchant ships, has wantonly and recklessly endangered the lives of all who travel the sea.

In these circumstances, having regard to the great interests entrusted to the British navy, to the safety of peaceful commerce on the high seas, and to the maintenance of the limits of international laws of trade between neutral countries, the admiralty feel it necessary to adopt exceptional measures appropriate to the novel conditions under which this war is being waged.

"They therefore give notice that the whole of the North sea must be considered a military area. Within this area merchant shipping of all kinds, traders to all countries, fishing craft and all other vessels will be exposed to the gravest dangers from mines which it has been necessary to lay and from warships searching vigilantly by night and day for suspicious craft.

"All merchant and fishing vessels of every description are hereby warned of the dangers they encounter by entering this area except in strict accordance with admiralty directions. Every effort will be made to convey this warning to neutral countries, and to vessels on the sea, but from the 4th of November onwards the admiralty announce that all ships passing a line drawn from the northern point of the Hebrides through the Faroe Islands to Iceland do so at their own peril.

"Ships of all countries wishing to pass to and from Norway, the Baltic, Denmark and Holland, are advised to come, if inward bound, by the English channel and the Straits of Dover. There they will be given sailing directions which will pass them safely, so far as Great Britain is concerned, up the east coast of England to Farnes Island, whence a safe route will, if possible, be given to Lindesay lighthouse. "From this point they should turn north or south, according to their destination, keeping as near the coast as possible. The course also applies to vessels outward bound. "By strict adherence to these routes the commerce of all countries will be able to reach its destination in safety, so far as Great Britain is concerned, but any straying, even for a few miles, from the course thus indicated, may be followed by fatal conclusions."

CANADIANS WILL MARCH IN LORD MAYOR'S SHOW

Cavalry Being at the Front: Celebration on Monday Will Be Without Escort.

London, Nov. 2.—Final details in connection with the lord mayor's show on Monday were settled at the Guild hall yesterday when the mayor and sheriff's committee met. It is announced that arrangements had been made with the war office for a military procession. The contingent is to consist of detachments of the city territorial units. In addition the London Scottish will send a representation and three hundred Canadians are to come from Salisbury Plain. A body of sailors from the naval reserve brigade at Crystal Palace will be included, among them some of those who fought at Antwerp.

For the first time in the memory of the authorities at Guild hall, the lord mayor will have no mounted escort. In the ordinary way the lord mayor is escorted by household cavalry. At the time of the four year a guard of yeomanry was substituted, but this year it is probable that no cavalry at all will be available.

TRANSFERRED TO VICTORIA.

London, Ont., Nov. 2.—Major Tooley, paymaster of the First Military Division, with headquarters here for the past four years, and formerly of Ottawa, has been transferred to Victoria.

GUNS ON BORKUM ISLAND.

London, Nov. 2.—A Central News dispatch from Amsterdam says that German 42-centimetre guns have been placed on Borkum Island in the North Sea.

NEXT CONTINGENT TO BE AN ARMY DIVISION

By January Canada Will Have 45,000 Soldiers Ready for Service

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—The second contingent will consist of sufficient men to form, with the extra brigade which went to Salisbury Plain, a complete army division. This will mean that the numerical strength of this contingent, which will get away around January 1, will be about 15,000 men, making the total expeditionary force, first and second contingents, 45,000 men who will be in the field. This is the wish of the war office, as contained in a memorandum which has just been issued.

This does not take into account the reinforcements, which are calculated at a yearly rate of 70 per cent. of the total force engaged.

This announcement will not interfere with the Canadian plans. The cabinet has the matter under advisement, and is in negotiations with the British war office, but it is expected that a full 30,000 will be enlisted anyway, and as soon as the 15,000 leave the number will be again filled up to 30,000.

These men can be made the base of a third contingent of reinforcements. An army division only calls for 2,000 cavalry. The government is taking the matter up with the war office, and it is expected the instructions will be amended that men of the western mounted units will be given a chance to go. With 47,000 men in the field, reinforcements on a basis of 70 per cent. and a home army of 30,000, if the war lasts a year more, Canada will have under arms a total of 110,000 men.

Recruiting is reported to be progressing most favorably for infantry. In fact, the chief complaint continues to be that the quotas which are to be supplied by the various divisions and districts are far too small, and that in many cases double the number of men required could be enlisted. This is especially true of the west, and also of Toronto. It is hoped that the instructions will permit the enlistment of other units, which will in some degree fill the demand.

As soon as the instructions have been approved here orders for the organization of the other units will go forth, and it is expected that the division will be ready by December. Troops will be equipped with clothing and rifles at divisional and district headquarters, so that when they concentrate at the point of embarkation they will be ready to depart as fast as equipment is ready and is sent to headquarters for distribution.

It is considered probable, in view of the situation which has developed in the far east, that some Canadians may be sent to Egypt.

PRINCE RUPERT SENDS LIGHT INFANTRY TO WAR

Festivities to Be Held Prior to Men Leaving Friday for Victoria.

Prince Rupert, B. C., Nov. 2.—The greatest enthusiasm is shown here over the departure of the active service company from the Prince Rupert Light Infantry for training at Victoria on Friday.

Col. Peck, commanding the company, returned home to-day to accompany the force to the south. The city council, on petition from prominent citizens, voted $2,000 to be used in connection with the send-off.

The remainder of the week will be given over to functions in connection with it. A dance will be given by the Canadian fraternity on Wednesday night, followed on Thursday with a public send-off, in which the resident clergy, H. S. Clements, M. P., William Manson, M. P., and the mayor and city council will take part, followed by a joint smoker given by the Sons of England and St. Andrew's society. "The company is a magnificent one, about fifty men chosen for the last half dozen years."

MAJOR CHAMBERS TELLS OF AGED MAN'S GIFT

Chief Censor Says British Columbia Newspapers Gave Co-Operation.

Winnipeg, Nov. 2.—Major Chambers, in charge of the censorship in Canada, is in this city on his return to Ottawa from Vancouver. Major Chambers states that British Columbia newspapers co-operated most heartily with the government in suppression of news calculated to be of service to the enemy.

In Courtenay, B.C., an old man called to see him. Though realizing he had long passed the age limit for service, the visitor was desirous of doing a little for his country. Hearing that Queen Mary had called for gifts of warm clothing for the troops, he drew out his savings from the bank, several hundred dollars, invested them in underwear and socks, and entrusted them to the major for delivery.

LANDSLIDE IN CANAL.

Washington, Nov. 3.—The Panama canal has been closed to navigation by another landslide. Colonel Goetzlowsky hopes to have it open again by Wednesday.

We never appreciated, says an American paper, how rare was the quality of the foresight exercised by our forefathers in emigrating from Europe quite so keenly as at the present time.

SOLDIERS' KITCHEN IS STRONG POINT IN WAR

Feeding an Army Corps Requires Preparation and is First Step to Success

London, Nov. 3.—The most serious problem with which a general in the field can be faced is that of keeping up the necessary food supply for the troops under his command. An army, indeed, marches on its stomach. At a pinch it can make shift to do without tents or transport, while, as is well known, successful operations have at times been carried out in a hostile area when not a single cartridge has been expended for weeks on end. Yet, though bullets may be dispensed with, this is certainly not the case with regard to bread or its equivalent. This, at any rate, has always been the opinion of the great military leaders—Napoleon, for example, being reported on one occasion to have had a soldier shot for throwing away a bag of biscuits, in order to make room for some ammunition.

The scale on which the commissariat arrangements for a protracted campaign are conducted is an exceedingly large one. A fact that contributes materially to this is that not only have rations and fodder to be issued daily to every man and horse on duty, but also that a considerable reserve supply has to be maintained at the base of operations. In the Boer war, for example, the amount of food thus stored was, as far as possible, that equalling a four months' consumption. When it is remembered that the number of troops drawing upon it was well over 200,000 at a time during the greater portion of the war, it will readily be seen that such a supply necessarily represented a very big stock indeed. To go, into actual figures, it may be of interest to learn that at the head of the various items composing a four months' supply for such a body is 24,000,000 lbs. of biscuit. This enormous total is closely approached by the "bully beef" one, as for every pound of the former commodity there is at least three quarters of a pound of the latter. To render it more palatable than it would be in itself, the commissariat department is required to keep in store 1,600,000 pounds of compressed vegetables and 800,000 pounds of salt. As appropriate accompaniments to the beef and biscuit, coffee and tea to the extent of 800,000 pounds and 400,000 pounds, respectively, are also included in the reserve supply.

In addition, to such absolute necessities as biscuit, beef and vegetables, the four months' food supply for an average army corps in the field includes many items that may almost be described as luxuries. For example, that for the British troops in South Africa contained 2,500,000 lbs. of jam (each holding 1 pound) and 750,000 tins of condensed milk. Jam, it is worth noting, was first introduced as an article of diet for soldiers in active service in the Egyptian campaign of 1884. As it was found to have excellent results (chiefly on account of its antiseptic properties) and also to be extremely appreciated by the men, it has remained a "field ration" ever since. It is generally eaten with biscuit, as bread is but rarely obtainable in the actual theatre of war.

"Drinkables" occupy almost as large a place as do "edibles" in the reserve food supply of an army corps when on active service. After the 800,000 pounds of coffee and 400,000 pounds of tea, already referred to, the principal totals maintained are 40,000 gallons of rum, 44,000 bottles of port, and 24,000 bottles of whiskey. There was also a very large quantity of lime-juice kept in reserve for the benefit of the sick and wounded.

Among the "miscellaneous stores" which the commander of any army corps looks to his commissariat department to furnish when called upon are 100 tons of alum (for purifying drinking water), 40 tons of chloride of lime, 12,000 pounds of carbolic acid powder, 20,000 gallons of kerosene, and some 80,000 pounds weight of candles. The food supply for the horses and mules is also on a generous scale, thousands of tons of hay, oats and bran being always kept at the base in readiness for instant dispatch to the front.

Mr. Dennis Mackin, Moxton, Sask., writes: "I have just finished writing the sixth box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I must say that when I commenced using it, my nerves were so bad that I could scarcely get any sleep. I would lie in bed nearly all night without sleep, and anyone who has this trouble knows the misery of sleepless nights. ## SUPREME COURT HEARS BRITISH COLUMBIA CASE

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—In the supreme court to-day the arguments were continued on the appeal of the Investment Corporation vs. the King, and judgment was reserved.

The appeal was next heard in the Great Northern railway and the V. V. & E. Railway company against O'Callaghan. The respondent was awarded $4,500 for the death of her husband and this judgment was affirmed by the court of appeal for British Columbia.

The deceased was a teamster and was hauling a load of shingles across the tracks of the latter company in Vancouver when the wagon was struck by a train of the Great Northern Railway company, moving backwards at a speed of about three miles and the shingles fell over the deceased and crushed him to death.

The appellants contend that the deceased was attempting to avoid the train, that all statutory precautions had been observed and special warnings given but deceased disregarded these warnings, and although the brakes were put on as soon as danger was apprehended, the train could not be brought to a stop before it hit the wagon.

UNION STOCK YARDS ARE UNDER QUARANTINE

Business Done at the Yards is in Neighborhood of $35,000,000 Daily.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—The Union Stock Yards, the largest in the world, and the state of Illinois as well, were quarantined against the shipment of cattle, hogs and sheep on orders from Washington to-day, according to a statement made by Dr. E. Bennett, chief of the local branch of the United States bureau of animal industry at the yards.

"This means the practical cessation of the meat packing business at the yards for the time being," said Dr. Bennett.

The government quarantine at the stock yards was modified this afternoon to permit the receipt and slaughter of cattle, hogs and sheep in the market. The effect of this is to place the situation where it was Saturday. The extent of the catastrophe to the trade may, it is said, be roughly approximated by the fact that the business done at the stock yards with ramifications into any other industries is in the neighborhood of $35,000,000 a day.

THE WAR.

We would like to believe that the allies' lines in Belgium have reached the points where enterprising newspaper correspondents in Holland and Northern France place them, but it is impossible to do so with the official bulletins staring us in the face. It is only twenty-five or thirty miles from the Dutch frontier to Dixmude, so when correspondents at Sluis state that heavy firing is heard in the vicinity of Thuroit, Thiel or southwest of Ghent, it may not mean such marked progress as we would prefer to believe to be the case. We should look for considerable advances along the coast and across the Yser between Nieuport and Dixmude, from which the Germans have retired, but progress between Dixmude and Labasse, with Ypres midway between them as the key, will be slow because it is along that line that the Germans, under the eye of the Kaiser, have massed their forces for their most desperate onslaughts. The allies have taken the important position of Passchendaele, eleven miles east of Ypres, which must have been the result of a big battle, but they have lost Messines, south of Ypres, apparently to the German corps which marched out of Lille. It is quite evident that there are no German soldiers in Lille, but the city has not been occupied by the allies, so it must be clear that the invaders hold positions in the vicinity which make its occupation at this stage undesirable.

If the newspaper correspondents lead us to hope for too much, the official bulletins incline definitely to the side of caution. When the French report speaks of fighting between "Dixmude and the Yser" we may conclude that the allies have made greater progress on the north of Lille than appears on the surface. If we could strike a line about half way between the estimate of press correspondents and the front drawn in the official bulletins we probably would have an accurate idea of the extent of the progress made by both sides. The meeting between President Poincaré, Earl Kitchener, General Joffre, Alexandre Millerand and the Belgian king at Dunkirk may be taken as a preface of some strong offensive movement by the allies on the Belgian front. While no particular significance need be attached to a visit to the front by French statesmen, a meeting of Kitchener, Joffre and the Belgian monarch is a different proposition and means business. We doubt if the allies so far have done more than conduct a defensive campaign in Flanders, while "nibbling away" to use Joffre's phrase, at important positions held by the enemy.

All the German and Austrian armies which marched upon the Vistula are falling back toward the Kalisz-Cracow line on the Silesian frontier. Whether they will make a stand along the river Warthe, in Poland, depends upon the reunion of their front. When the German Warsaw army retreated its commander forgot to inform the German right wing, with the result that the Russians have divided them. If they cannot outmanoeuvre the wedge thrust between them they cannot put up a serious resistance until they reach their own frontier. In fact, it is claimed by one observer that the Russians have cut off the German left wing on the north, which would mean its envelopment on both flanks, besides opening the road for a Russian attack on Posen. In Galicia the Austrians still continue to put up a stubborn resistance, advancing their front in certain localities, but they cannot hold out very long. They, too, must fall back towards Cracow, but as they are extended as far as the province of Bukovina, in Eastern Galicia, a considerable part of them will be unable to rejoin the Carpathians. It is hardly likely the Russian Poland army will continue to offensive until the Austrian-German forces have been cleaned out of Galicia. Otherwise their flank would be constantly threatened.

WORK OF Y.M.C.A.

The people of Victoria are generous givers. They have been noted for their liberality of purse and views ever since the days of the gold excitement. Many voluntary levies have been made during the present year owing to the outbreak of war and the conditions following in the wake thereof. But we trust there is something in reserve for deserving local institutions. Of these there is none more worthy of generous support than the Y.M.C.A., which has begun its annual campaign for increased membership. We are all familiar with the work the Young Men's Christian Associations are doing in all parts of the world. In Victoria we know this institution has been a bulwark of strength to all the qualities which make for good, sound citizenship. Just now it has special opportunities for the extension of its spheres of influence owing to the presence in the community of many young men who have enlisted in the service of their country. The quarters of the soldiers in the very nature of things are none too attractive. They cannot be provided with all the accommodations to which the young men of the present day have been accustomed nor with complete facilities for wholesome social enjoyment. Hence it is the purpose of the Y.M.C.A. to extend to these young men special terms of membership. This action has appealed strongly to our citizens, several of whom already have paid the membership fees of soldiers, who thus will feel that they can take advantage of the baths, the gymnasium, etc., without trespassing beyond the bounds of legitimate hospitality. We commend the campaign of the management of the Y.M.C.A. to the attention of the public and hope it will be crowned with the success it merits.

SIR RICHARD'S TIP.

In the course of an application for naturalization in the County Court yesterday by a gentleman of international prominence who was born in Germany of a Danish father, the applicant stated that two years ago he was advised by Sir Richard McBride that it was not necessary for him to become naturalized; that in this province no distinction was made between British subjects and aliens.

While it may not have been necessary for the gentleman to become naturalized here in certain circumstances, it was imperative that he should do so if he intended to make this province his home and discharge his full duties as a citizen. It is surprising indeed that Sir Richard McBride gave such advice. We would have expected him to urge the gentleman to become naturalized at once and then proceed with equal celerity to the office of W. H. Price and have his name enrolled on the voters' list.

THE SERGEANT'S FEAT.

A dispatch says that Sergeant Godson, a well-known football player, was decorated on the field with the emblem of the Legion of Honor for taking charge of his company after all its officers had been killed and destroying a German battery. The name implies that the sergeant is a British soldier. If so, the incident affords eloquent testimony to the superiority of the professional or volunteer soldier over the conscript, which, in a more general sense, was demonstrated during the memorable British retreat from Mons to the Marne in front of a force three times their number.

When Berlin was informed that Kitchener expected to have a new army of half a million men in the field in six months its military men were accordingly incredulous. It was impossible, they said. Where were the officers to be found? The Prussian idea of an officer is that he is one of the most wonderful works of God as exemplified in the German military system. Statesmen, philosophers, artists, illustrious though they may be, are humans of a subsidiary stratum. The officer belongs to another world. The stars light upon him from the clouds and to the exalted atmosphere in which he moves there is no admission from the ranks. He only is permitted to do the thinking for the soldiers, and so thoroughly has that theory been ingrained in the German mind that the common soldier is absolutely helpless when his officer falls. Such a thing as a sergeant or any other non-com. taking charge of a company and executing a manoeuvre is so utterly foreign to the German system which makes automata of its rank and file, it is so alien to the officer caste which has been created, that we seriously believe that if the man survived he would be court-martialled for his presumption.

While the heavy loss of officers undoubtedly is a handicap to all armies, it is much less so to the British and overseas forces than to those of the other countries engaged in the present war. There are hundreds of Sergeant Godsons among the corps fighting under the Union Jack. They are not machines, but human beings who are encouraged by their leaders to think for themselves when a crisis arises. The task of obtaining officers for another half a million men might worry the authorities of Potsdam, cherishing the delusion that officers are found only among the social elite, but it will not worry Kitchener. In this war it will be found that every intelligent British soldier is a potential officer. A similar opinion of his magnificent men more than a century ago enabled Napoleon to fight Europe to a standstill for twenty years.

TURKEY'S PREDICAMENT.

The Sublime Porte has been in many tight corners in its day, but wily old Abdul Hamid never extricated himself from a position so hopeless as the one in which his successor finds himself securely bound. The present ruler of the faithful and his prime minister are strongly opposed to Turkish intervention against the entente. The Young Turk party, nominally led by Enver Bey, minister for war, but in reality under the domination of Berlin, already has forced the naval branch to take belligerent action. The Grand Vizier has apologized for what the other party did, but he and his following are powerless to do more than apologize. Meanwhile the German and Russian continue to perpetrate outrages upon Russian interests in the Black Sea. As far as the war is concerned, Turkey has become more than a German ally. She is actually a German state, and as such must be put out of business.

Germany became dominant in Turkey's affairs when her agents instigated the revolution by the Young Turk party six years ago which resulted in the dethronement of Abdul Hamid and the elevation of his brother, a weak-minded prince, who, after an imprisonment of many years, though the will of his affectionate relative, ascended the imperial throne, dazed and rubbing his eyes. Abdul Hamid was altogether objectionable in Germany's opinion. He was too many for the intrigues of Potsdam, with whom he played ducks and drakes, and the world enjoyed the spectacle of Germany encouraging and abetting a revolution aimed at the promotion of a constitutional government in Turkey, a system which Prussia hates more than it hates the memory of Jena.

The result of the revolution was that the Young Turks became the dominant party in the Ottoman Empire, and it was not long before they embroiled their country in a disastrous war with Italy, which led to the loss of Tripoli. They followed this with an even more cataclysmic struggle with the Balkan States, who carved up Turkish territory in the Balkan peninsula with a thoroughness which startled the world, as thoroughly as Süleiman the Magnificent tore from the Balkan principalities their heritage in the days when the crescent waved only over conquering armies from the East. But those two bitter lessons were not sufficient to convince the Young Turks that they were in dangerous company, that as a guide, philosopher and friend Germany was a menace to their country's welfare. They seem determined to go the whole route, and from the next collapse there will be no resurrection. War between Great Britain and Russia and the Turkish soldiers actually has begun, although so far there has been no formal declaration. Russian and Turkish soldiers have been fighting in the Caucasus, while a British fleet has bombarded a town east of Suez, where Turkish soldiers are stationed.

From contemplation of Turkey's action the eyes of the chancellors of Europe as a matter of course turn to Bulgaria. Ethnologically the Bulgars have nothing in common with the Turks, their traditional enmities, nor with the Teutons, whom they hate with almost equal intensity. Having from the region between the Ural Mountains and the Volga, they have looked upon Russia as their natural protector, and more than once the great Slav power has unsheathed the sword in their defence. It was Turkey's cruelty to the Bulgarians which caused Russia to chastise her in 1878, and in the light of recent events it is a great pity she was not permitted by the Concert of Europe to finish the job. The present war has arisen through the determination of Russia, continuing in the role of protector of the small Slav states, to save one of them from the Teuton bully.

But Bulgaria, nursing a grudge which arose from the recent Balkan war, finding Bulgarian soldiers in possession of a considerable part of Macedonia—too much, in their opinion—Serbia, Greece and Montenegro turned upon her and gave her a severe beating. Roumania, which had remained neutral during the main struggle, jumped in and took Silistria, and to crown all, Turkey threw the treaty of peace to the winds and recaptured Adrianople. Bulgaria thus found herself in possession of much less territory than she was entitled to in view of her enormous sacrifices, and her grievance is not unnatural. Nevertheless her statesmen must realize that if she takes sides with Turkey she will have to fight both Germany and Roumania and that she must share the ultimate fate of the Ottoman empire. If through a miracle Turkey won, Bulgaria in common with the other Balkan States again would be under the heel of the hated Turk.

Torn between two conflicting emotions, she has proclaimed insistently her neutrality, but it is impossible for her to maintain that attitude. She must support in the field either the entente or the triple alliance. If she forgets her grudge against Greece and Serbia for a substantial consideration and casts her lot with the entente her territory, which now involves the allied countries and Constantinople, will be the base from which the Turk will be kicked out of Europe. Russian diplomacy, which knows a trick or two, should be able to make a territorial deal with the Bulgarians such as will ensure their support of the allies' cause.

The Kaiser is practicing the Moslem war-cry, "La Haha Allah!" When he gets it down properly he as the head of the faith and the only one and original successor of Mohammed, will proclaim a holy war against Christian believers. Thus he has another duty to whom to ascribe all praise for the butchery of innocents. When his soldiers destroyed Louvain he declared that God had blessed the German arms, and scattered iron crosses in their first massacre he will don the turban and attribute the glory to Allah. And the cultured elect of Potsdam say Germany is fighting the battle of Christianity!

In September United States exports to Germany fell off more than thirty-four million dollars. In September of this year they were but $2,328. This statement accounts to some extent for the fact that wheat in the Fatherland is selling at nearly double the market price in Great Britain. The German people soon will realize what "war means. When they have both famine and foreign legions within their borders they will shower something more than blessings upon the head of the Kaiser.

We observe that Lieut.-Col. Rousset is of the same opinion as the Colonel as our contemporary modestly points out. That settles it. We presume it is of no use for us to say that Major-General Hughes is of the same opinion as the Times. We would like to be able to point out that Colonel Shumsky, of Petrograd, agrees with our views, but we are not sure what Shumsky's opinions are. We fear we shall have to lean upon Major-General Hughes. Besides, it is patronizing home industry.

Even the press also has its views to carry during these trying times of wars and rumors of wars. It is now receiving official bulletins of the progress of events from Constantinople via Berlin.

Prince Rupert is on the road to happiness. A mail service has been inaugurated between that city and the east over the Grand Trunk railway.

MAKING A SOLDIER.

Kitchener's war school uses a twenty-six-week course to prepare a man to be shot over. This causes impatience among the patriots and at the same time cures it. Every young man that enlisted for the Spanish war expected that he would be snapping at the foe as fast as a steamer could take him to Cuba, and undoubtedly the same spirit prevails in England. But Kitchener knows the folly of sending untrained men into the field against such a machine as the Kaiser's. The English clerk, rushing to the colors, is getting at Aldershot a taste of the discipline which made the Sirdar master

A Great Sale of Ladies' Costumes to Start Wednesday

All Costumes Formerly Priced from $35 to $150
Now Grouped into Three Prices $15 $25 and $50

We commence this sale of Costumes somewhat earlier than in former years. The unusual conditions prevailing—partly caused by the great European war following a prolonged financial stringency—has caused many women to economize in dress, and consequently our stock of Ladies' better grade Costumes is much heavier than it would be under normal conditions. Therefore, to immediately reduce our stock, we have grouped all Novelty Costumes and Imported Models, formerly priced from $35.00 to $150, into three prices—$15.00, $25.00 and $50.00.

We draw particular attention to the fact that in the group marked at $15.00 there's not one single Costume worth less than $35.00, and many are regular $37.50 values. The $50.00 group includes all our extreme and imported novelties in velvets and cloth, with fur trimmings, previously marked to sell from $75.00 to $150.00. The range marked at $25.00 represents Suits previously marked from $45.00 to $60.00, and includes practically every popular style of the season.

To say the least, this is an extraordinary Suit opportunity, coming as it does at the beginning of November, with the cold weather scarcely started. Such substantial savings, too, should encourage every woman, who has yet her Winter Suit to buy, to attend this sale when there will be an opportunity to buy some of this season's best models at half-price and less. See View street windows for samples.

Our Special November Bedding Sale to Start Wednesday

$5,000 WORTH OF BLANKETS, BESIDES SHEETS, PILLOW CASES AND COMFORTERS, ALL AT GREATLY REDUCED PRICES

We usually hold a big Bedding Sale early in November, but this year's offerings will out-clips, for value-giving, anything that we have offered previously. The conditions affecting this sale are different and unique. In the first place the continued fine weather is responsible for our stocks being heavier than we anticipated. In the second place the conditions caused by the European war has made a big demand on the blanket mills, thus using up all surplus stocks and causing a general advance in prices. Fortunately, we bought our winter stock and planned for this annual sale long before war was declared. Therefore, we are in a position to offer you the very best grades at prices considerably below the regular.

After the War.—The general opinion prevails that after the war there will be an influx of people into Canada from the old world. Vancouver Island will get its share. Without the help of this movement we have sold 25 blocks of farming land to actual settlers in the past four months. This is because we have the best land, and can sell it at the lowest price and longest terms of any offered on the island. Bell. The usual good attendance of members listened with interest to the speaker, who filled the place announced for Rev. Dr. Scott.

Some Aldermen May Attend.—Having been invited to attend a gathering organized by the Victoria and District Unemployed League this evening at the Variety theatre, the mayor and members of the city council in session last night, decided that the matter should be left to the decision of each individual member of the council.

To Remove Tent.—At the meeting of the city council last evening, the chief of the fire department reminded the members of the council that the period of grace for Hollywood crescent tent-dwellers expired last Saturday. He asked for directions as to what officials should put into execution the terms of the by-law. On the suggestion of the city solicitor, the chief of police will be asked to put the tent by-law into force.

The several artists were all called on for encores, and the band excelled itself in several of its selections. Supper's "Overture" and the "Military Fantasia" proving particularly popular and showing careful rehearsing under the conductor. The soloists were Ernest Petch, who gave a very fine rendering of "Who's That Calling?" Mrs. Victor Waram, who was heartily encored after the "D'Ambrosio 'Serenade' given on the violin; and Mrs. Roy Troup, who gave a very artistic rendering of a recruiting song the music of which was written by Mrs. A. J. Gibson. "The Call." Mrs. Gibson acted as accompanist, and Bandmaster Rowlands earned approval in the capacity of conductor. The entertainment concluded with the National Anthem.

Ready in New Year.—The contractors, Luney Brothers, Ltd., announce that unless there is further delay in the delivery of some articles for the interior fittings ordered from the old country some months ago and delayed owing to the war, the interior of the Normal school should be completed in another two months and the building turned over to the department of education. The structure which has been rising under the shadow of Mount Tolmie for the past year, is now practically finished so far as construction is concerned, but there is a considerable amount of work to be done in the interior. Much finishing work has to be done on the auditorium, which runs up two stories and will seat 700 persons. The plumbing and heating of the building is in an advanced stage, as is also the carpentering work, the latter being delayed as mentioned above for the lack of some material. W. C. F. Gillam is the architect.

Yesterday the prisoner, who is an ex-soldier, pleaded not guilty to both charges.

Saanich Council.—At the meeting of the Saanich council this afternoon, for James Rawlings, accused of smashing hotel glass windows at the Manitoba hotel and assaulting a man named Owens, has signed on to go with the second contingent, Magistrate Jay remanded him in the police court this morning for one day more. Yesterday the prisoner, who is an ex-soldier, pleaded not guilty to both charges.

For the Soldiers.—The Overseas Daily Mail Tobacco Fund, a local subscription list for which has been opened by Miss Gladys King at the Belgian Relief rooms, has grown to very creditable proportions, and it is anticipated that when the list closes on November 20 there will be a good sum to send forward for the purpose of buying tobacco to send to men at the front. The committee associated with Miss King in the work of obtaining subscriptions consists of Mrs. W. J. Roper, Mrs. W. M. Rolston and Mrs. George Jay.

Garden City Women's Institute.—The "coming-out" party of the new Women's Institute at Garden City was held on Friday evening at the residence of Mrs. James MacLachlan, Glasgow avenue. The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion, the work of the committee being supplemented by generous gifts of gladioli, chrysanthemums and carnations, and a most enjoyable evening was spent with music, cards and dancing. There is abundance of enthusiasm in the new institute, and several younger people connected with the organization are willing to take up anything in the way of hard work that they are asked to do provided they can have occasional relaxation of the kind arranged last week.

Benefit Party.—A big crowd of people from the surrounding district participated recently in a social and concert held at the residence of W. H. Anderson at Otter Point. The proceeds of the event, amounting to $184.81, being taken in aid of the relief work being carried forward by the I. O. O. F. Several of the visitors traveled some distance, some being from the Jordan River district and others from Naylor's Bay and Victoria. An impromptu concert was furnished with, several delightful vocalists from the district and also from Victoria, and later in the evening the guests indulged in dancing. One of the most interesting phases of the entertainment was the auction of cakes, fruit and vegetables held by Mr. Milligan, who was amusing and clever as the auctioneer.

GETTING READY FOR WINTER

Winter is the season of large necessities.

Many things have to be provided for the home. Wardrobes have to be refurnished.

Careful buying means the satisfaction that comes from good quality and fair price.

The lamp to light the way to sure buying is knowledge.

And the best buyers' guide to be found anywhere is the advertising in a live newspaper like the Times.

Advertisers fight in open competition.

They present their cases squarely and it is for the public to choose.

CONTRACT POSTPONED

Esquimalt Council Will Not Deal With Sewer Tenders Until Some Further Information Has Been Obtained.

Although the report of the engineer, upon the tenders put in for the construction of sewers in what is known as section "D" of Esquimalt was before the members of the municipal council last evening the contract was not awarded.

Reeve Saunders stated to his fellow-members that it would be well to postpone action for a short time, as new developments were arising, and it would be well for the council to watch these and govern itself in the matter of the contract under question accordingly.

Further information is also being asked for from the engineer as to the area now being considered and the plans for the work. It is expected by the reeve that the council will be able to take the matter up for settlement at an early date.

The Hudson's Bay company's new sub-division on Macaulay plains, a little south of Esquimalt road, has been before the council from time to time during the past year or so. In part this runs along Rutherford and Lyall streets, and in the running of the lines these do not coincide with the existing street lines, with the result that there will be gaps when the roadways are graded and run through. The council has sought uniformity of lines. Last evening a communication was read from the company in which it was stated that it could not agree to the council's suggestions as to the street lines in these instances, and that it will appeal to the lieutenant-governor-in-council under the provisions of the law for an order approving its sub-division plans.

The municipal solicitor will represent the municipality before the executive when the application comes before that body.

A number of small routine matters dealt with by the report from the works committee were passed without further delay, including some sidewalk repairs and other provision for the rainy season.

ORPHANS DOING WELL

Ladies' Committee of Protestant Orphanage Holds Regular Meeting: Contributions Acknowledged.

The following members of the ladies' committee of the Protestant Orphanage were present at the meeting held yesterday at the home of Madames Spencer, McTavish, W. R. Higgins, McCulloch, David Miller, C. F. Todd, Dalby, W. Munroe, Toller, Stewart, Cochenour, Langley, Cameron, Vigilius and Andrews. Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Vigilius were appointed visitors for November.

The children at the home, it was reported, had spent a merry Halloween, the usual games being indulged in, and the youngsters delight in the taking in aid of the relief work being carried forward by the I. O. O. F. Several of the visitors traveled some distance, some being from the Jordan River district and others from Naylor's Bay and Victoria. An impromptu concert was furnished with, several delightful vocalists from the district and also from Victoria, and later in the evening the guests indulged in dancing. One of the most interesting phases of the entertainment was the auction of cakes, fruit and vegetables held by Mr. Milligan, who was amusing and clever as the auctioneer.

There are now 61 children in the home, two having left during the month. Many generous gifts had been sent in during the month, but the children were much in need of boots. Parcels of cloth samples had been used in making comfortable quilts. Bills amounting to $184.81 were passed, and it was reported that some repairs to the building had been made and new blackboards supplied for the schoolroom.

The following donations were thankfully acknowledged: Cash, Mrs. W. E. Burton, $2.50, and Mrs. John Dean, $15, and the following gifts in kind: Mrs. C. F. Todd, literature; Mrs. Murray, apples and literature; Mrs. Munroe, celery and tomatoes; A. Friend, candy; Knights of Pythias, cakes and sandwiches; St. Luke's church, fruit and vegetables; Mrs. Cameron, cream; A. Friend, apples; St. George's school, $1.55, books, toys, games, fruit, groceries, clothing and shoes; St. Barnabas' church, vegetables and fruit; Mrs. W. R. Higgins, oranges; Oaklands' Parish church, fruit, vegetables and eggs; Mrs. Bartlett, carpet and oranges; Mrs. Penberton, pears; Rev. Dr. Currie, apples; Mr. Borden, apples; Sons of Columbia, fruit, sandwiches and cake; Mrs. Pawson, apples; Mr. Borden, apples; and the Times, the Colonist and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Foreign Bank to Pay Costs.—In the county court action of Walsh v. Canadian Bank of Commerce, J. P. Lutton, K. C., for the bank, this morning mentioned to the court that the action arose out of the payment by the Old National Bank of Spokane of $591.99 on a false endorsement of a cheque made by the B. C. Fisheries in favor of Walsh, and collected by it through the Bank of Commerce. The former bank was reimbursing the Bank of Commerce, but he asked that the court should order the payment of the costs by the Spokane bank. This order was made.

ALWAYS WELCOME THE music of the Edison Diamond-Disc Phonograph

There are certain features about this instrument that renders it a really new instrument in the field of music. Its new voice comes from a system of sound reproduction upon which Mr. Edison has spent his time almost exclusively for the past three years. By the use of the permanent diamond as the reproducing point, eliminating the constant changing of needles that is so irksome, this instrument pours out its music with a sweetness that is unique. It is the only instrument that reproduces all overtones, upon which all music is dependent for its sweetness. Thus, there is opened to everybody, for the first time, the whole range of the world's music. We want you to hear this new instrument to-day.

ROTARY CLUB YEAR OLD

Fiftieth Luncheon Will Be Held Next Week; Programme for This Week's Function.

The Rotary Club is now over a year old, the organization meeting having been held on October 27, 1913. There are ninety members on the rolls and every one of them is an active one. These will gather on or about December 15 for the annual meeting, when the election of officers will take place and plans will be discussed for the further extension of the activities of the club.

At the luncheon on Thursday afternoon next there will be two addresses from members of the club, one of them from W. H. Adam, on business accounting, and the other from Claud A. Solly on passenger transportation. Mr. Solly will prove himself a ready and affable passenger agent by answering all the questions upon that subject that may be flung at him. Members are advised in the weekly bulletin of the club to think up some posers for him on any transportation problem except that of railway policy. Mr. Adam is an expert accountant and is engaged in many involved liquidation proceedings where a very thorough knowledge of accounting is required, and he will be able to give the members some useful pointers on methods of accounting and bookkeeping.

The luncheon next week will be the fifth since the organization of the club and a special programme is being prepared for the occasion. Those members who volunteered last week as members of the businessmen's reserve battalion of the 50th regiment, are being notified by Sergt. Pritchard of a parade at the drill hall to-morrow evening.

"PEG O' MY HEART" PLEASES.

Favorite Comedy Appearing at Princess Theatre This Week; Verna Felton Scores in Title Role.

"Peg o' my Heart" has always succeeded in making an impression on the susceptible both off the stage and on, and Miss Verna Felton last evening at the Princess theatre was quite lovable in the title role, and moved her audience successively to tears and laughter as she enunciated the unsophisticated philosophies or quaintly-worldly ideas of this child of nature. The play's name seems to be enough to draw the public, and not a vacant seat was in the house last evening when this curtain went up on the first act.

Peg was admirably acted, and Miss Felton displayed very fine discretion in modifying the role of "tom-boy," and keeping it within the dimensions of comedy rather than farce. The little art of infusing pathos into her voice is peculiarly her own, and on several occasions it was used most effectively in her little outbursts of penitence and sympathy.

Bron Eagan again scored a success as the languid son of luxury, and in his character of Alaric Chichester, cousin and critic of the untutored but warm-hearted little Irish girl, was happily suited to the part. Irving Kennedy made a very agreeable Jerry, and was becomingly gallant and ardent as the "litle lover" of the harum-scarum Peggy. As the aunt Mrs. P. R. Allen was good, if perhaps less successfully suited than in some of her recent roles, and Miss Jean Graem acted well in the ungracious character of Ethel, the conventionally-venerable cousin. The unpleasant Brent was convincingly acted by Norman Pearce, and the mercenary Hawkes was made sufficiently ridiculous by Arthur Kenck. Charles Connors acted the man-servant. A remaining but very important part was that of the business, and to delightfully filled by Michael, a real dog, who was natural from muzzle to tip of tail.

PITHY PARAGRAPHS

His fiancée—"Papa will make his settlement the same day we are married, the 19th." The Count—"Come, dear, let us get married on the 17th." His fiancée—"Is that the anniversary of some great historical event in your family?" The Count—"No; but I have a note due—the 18th."

"What became of that Russian count, the one who insulted you?" asked Colonel Medders. "He choked to death," answered Major Bluster. "Choked to death? How did it happen?" "Why, you see, he insulted me in his own language, and after I had it translated, I made him swallow his words!"

A Problem in Etiquette—A red-faced, awkward young man approached an usher at a church wedding the other day, and timidly slipped into his hand a package tied with red ribbon. "What's this," asked the usher suspiciously. "Oh, that's the present for the bride." "But you shouldn't bring it in here, my friend!" "Shouldn't?" he replied tempestuously. "That's what this ticket in my invitation says. See here!" The usher's eyes were moist as he read: "Present at the door."

A school teacher was trying to impress upon a scholar's mind that Columbus discovered America in 1492. "Now, John," he said, "I will tell you the date in rhyme so that you won't forget it. In fourteen hundred and ninety-two Columbus sailed the ocean blue." Now, can you remember that, John? "Yes, sir," replied John. Next day the teacher said, "John, when did Columbus discover America?" "In fourteen hundred and ninety-three Columbus sailed the dark blue sea!"

A teacher, instructing her class in the composition of sentences, wrote two on the blackboard, one a misstatement of fact, and the other wrong grammatically. The sentences were: "The hen has three legs," and "Who done it?" "Harry," she said to one of the youngsters, "go to the blackboard and show where the fault lies in those two sentences." Harry slowly approached the board, evidently studying hard. Then he took the crayon and wrote: "The hen never done it. God done it."

He was a pompous individual, who had just slipped at the bath, and he was considerably annoyed when, a stout old countrywoman offered him three pence to carry her basket down to the tube station. "Woman," he thundered, "do I look like a man who carries baskets about London for threepence? Allow me to inform you that I am descended from the Dukes of Rothelin." "Oh, beg pardon, sir," stammered the old girl. "I thought you had descended from the Tayswater bus."

Every dog owner, writes one of them, must remember that at one time or another the innocent animal has come home without its collar. My own lost two within recent memory. I used to wonder where they went to, and put it down to the small boy. That is as it may be, but their ultimate destination came as a great surprise. A day or two ago I saw a navvy laying drains; his molekin trousers were neatly strapped below the knees by two dainty little dog collars, nameplates and brass studs all complete. Manchester Guardian.

It takes a genius to get the better of a gas company, but one man has managed it. He had a penny-in-the-slot meter, but though the company was aware that he used a great quantity of gas, the machine was always empty when the collector called. When the company for its own protection, offered to pay the rogue for his secret, he produced an ice disc of the requisite size, inserted it in the slot, and let the company imagine the rest. The staggered institution decided to open a branch in Greenland where ice doesn't melt quite so fast.

The new foreman was a hustler. Nothing escaped his eagle eye, and whenever he saw a workman suffering from a tired feeling, he quickly woke him up. So when he discovered a bricklayer snatching a quiet pipe behind a wheelbarrow, his wrath arose mightily. "What do you think you're paid for? Get on with your job, if you don't want to get fired pretty sharp!" "All right, boss," rejoined the workman. "Keep your air on, Rome wasn't built in a day, you know." "That may be," rejoined the hustler; "but I wasn't foreman of that job."

We were talking about high education, writes a correspondent of the "Manchester Guardian," and a friend told me this story of his cousin. He was at extension by Censor College until the age of nineteen, and he left to get married. His wife brought, among other things, two scrubbing brushes—one for the floors, the other to use in the cleansing of celery and other vegetables. He was a very handy chap, and he took a red-hot skewer and marked the brushes so that each could be kept for its special purpose. One he marked "S" for "scrubbing," the other "S" for "celery."

A tobaccoist who recently bought a new business is telling of an odd occurrence which turns the laugh against himself. On the first night of his ownership a shabbily dressed man of about sixty-five years old came into the shop, walked to the cigar-lighter, and ignited the tobacco in a dirty clay pipe. After blowing a huge cloud of foul-smelling smoke about the place, he walked out, without making a purchase or speaking a word. The tobaccoist was a bit nettled at the man's air of familiarity, but imagined he might be some crony of the former proprietor and had not learned of the transfer of the business. When the little old man appeared every night for a week and repeated his pipe-lighting performance, however, the tobaccoist decided to remonstrate, and stepped in front of the intruder as he was about to go. "Who are you, sir?" he demanded. "Why," exclaimed the little old man, in apparent amazement, "don't you know who I am?" "No!" almost shouted the dealer in Florence, Nightingale Chapter, I. O. D. E. Meets: Regent is Returning to City.

The Florence Nightingale Chapter I. O. D. E. held a meeting yesterday afternoon in the King's Daughters' room, Mrs. Beckwith, acting regent, in the chair, and 25 members being present. A number of interesting reports were read, including the treasurer's statement, which showed a balance in hand of $60.20.

The news to the effect that Mrs. Hassell, the regent of the chapter, would be back in Victoria during the week, was welcomed by the members.

At the meeting Mrs. Elanah, representing the Women's Council, reported on the work being done at the employment bureau of the council at 637 Fort Street, stating that Mrs. Kennedy, a member of the chapter, was on duty daily at the bureau, where other members also gave much of their time.

The sewing committee reported that the Thursday afternoon sewing meetings had been given up in favor of sewing at home, which was more convenient for the members. The supplies of the chapter had been considerably augmented by a parcel from the Gordon Head Women's Institute, whose gift was gratefully acknowledged. A box of clothing had been given to the Belgian relief collection, and the secretary was asked to write to the Friendly Help association and other benevolent organizations, asking what gifts they required. Miss Lister was requested to write to the military camps in the Rockies and find out as to the acceptability of such comforts as knitted helmets and cummerbunds.

In connection with the report of the tea committee for the Made-in-Victoria exhibition, votes of thanks were passed to the W. A. Jameson Coffee Co., the Pioneer Coffee and Spice Mills, Popham Brothers, and to various ladies, all of whom had made gifts of useful character. A vote of thanks was also passed to Mrs. Ware, whose gift of chickens had brought $5 for the funds of the chapter.

Mrs. Beckwith, who in Mrs. Hassell's absence has filled the office of regent, was thanked, by standing vote of the members, for her work in connection with the chapter, which she thanked for its co-operation. Before adjourning the meeting voted $9.75 toward the mince pies supplied by the L. O. D. E. for the soldiers' Thanksgiving dinner; $5 towards the King's Daughters' work in recognition of their kindness in permitting the use of their room for the meetings; and $5 to the Municipal Chapter, as the annual tax.

SPEAKS OF DOUGLAS FIR

C. C. Pemberton Gives Interesting Paper Before Natural History Society.

At the Natural History Society's meeting last evening, presided over by President Barton, the principal feature was a very interesting paper read by C. C. Pemberton on the subject of the Douglas Fir.

This tree, said Mr. Pemberton, was native to North America, and had a wonderful range of choice in the place of its growth. It was to be found all the way from Northern British Columbia down to Mexico, and grew in altitudes ranging from the lowlands of the seacoast to the higher ranges of the mountains 10,000 feet in elevation. In the lowlands it grew as high as 300 ft., but was to be found as a stunted dwarf in the highest elevation in the mountains. With a constitution that thrived alike in the rainy coast regions and the dry climate of the interior, the trees had a long life, ranging from five hundred to seven hundred and fifty years. It had stood transplanting in many countries, and was of commercial value as well as ornamental value.

Illustrating his talk with lantern slides Mr. Pemberton pointed out some of the different types of the Douglas fir to be seen around Victoria, showing the characteristic foliage, stems,

Twentieth Century Vandalism-- Rheims Cathedral

They will show you on a tower of the cathedral of Magdeburg a scar effected by guns of Tilly when he sacked the city in 1521. But the destructive Thirty Years' War of the seventeenth century has no such vandalism to its discredit as has the war against civilization now led by the Emperor William. On September 19 the German guns were directed against the cathedral of Rheims, the roof was soon in a blaze, and the building now stands as an empty shell with many of the walls crumbling to the ground. The architectural detail of statuary and exquisite tracery that has existed for centuries has been turned into crude, chaotic stonework. In Rheims Cathedral the French kings were crowned, and it was the scene of the triumph of Joan of Arc, who assisted here at the crowning of Charles VII.

branches, and root system. He also pointed out the difference between the Douglas and the true fir (Abies). The former was first discovered by Menzies at Nootka, as long ago as 1792, and was classified under the name of Pinus Taxifolia by Lambert. In 1827 David Douglas re-discovered the tree, which was named after the great explorer by Lindley. It was now, classed as a false hemlock (pseudotsuga Douglasii).

Another interesting item in connection with the lecture had to do with the extinguishing of stamps of felled trees, and the marching of the roots, photographs of which were shown. Letters on the subject were read from eminent botanists.

BILL IS ENTERTAINING

Varied Programme at Pantages Theatre Amuses Packed House.

Pantages' artists this week seem to be taking an unusual interest in each other, by allusions to preceding acts on the part of some, and by sundry complimentary reappearances in succeeding acts on the part of others. This fact probably accounted for the increased interest on the part of the audience, and appreciation ran high in the crowd which packed the house last evening for each performance. Dick Gardner was really one of the most popular of the artists. Making his appearance in an unobtrusive way he subtly ingratiated himself into the favor of all and kept the house in a state of lively anticipation for his next curious antic. Dapper, nimble, musician, he was a delightfully droll comedian, and was assisted by Miss Revere.

Another clever entertainer is Walter Terry, who rose above the ordinary meagre limitations of his part in "Cannibal Isle" and kept the house constantly laughing by his terpsichorean entertainments, provided as an antidote to the cannibalistic overtures of a be-jagghed Zulu. As a missionary Terry belied the traditions of his cloth in everything except his distaste for bad language, and his desirability as an edible. His dancing was beyond reproach, and his powers as comedian unlimited. A wonderful pantomime performance by W. C. Johnston as the Zulu, accompanied with a remarkable flow of language and other remarks, was given, and a pretty Zulu queen was Nellie Elmer.

Many went to the theatre for the express purpose of hearing the interesting story of Joe Knowles who went forth into the Slakyou mountains without food, clothing, weapons or food, and searched out some of the secrets known only to savages of how to live the life of primitive man, unaided by modern inventions. Moving pictures entertainingly illustrated the story, which was completed by a demonstration of lighting a fire without matches or other prepared device.

The five Mowatts gave a very brilliant performance in club juggling; La Touraine four are a quartette of excellent singers; and the two Kerns, who open the programme, are gymnasts of ability.

Tolerance is a virtue which the oppressed alone know how to define. Touraine.

Not a few Englishmen must have asked themselves during the past two months whether within comparatively recent times we have met the Germans as enemies in the field. It is well known—and, if it were not, the Kaiser would not allow us to forget it—that after the accession of the house of Brunswick and up to the fall of Napoleon we constantly stood not only Hanoverians, who were subjects of our own king, but Brunswickers and even more frequently Hessians as mercenaries into our pay. The Landgrave of Hesse, indeed, was generally ready to sell us his subjects as much as he pleased, and the men were often dear at the money; for it could not be expected that they should take much interest in our quarrels. It was, in fact, the Hessians who wrecked our campaign of 1776 in America. They could not resist the temptation of a great carouse on Christmas Day; and while they were feasting, George Washington cunningly fell on 1,200 of them by surprise and captured the whole detachment. The resistance that they offered was very poor, and with the prospect of entering the ranks of the Americans and obtaining a grant of land afterwards, they showed little disinclination to surrender. It is not easy, in the circumstances, to blame them; but their failure was upon this occasion very far from being about the ultimate success of the Americans.

The Hanoverians, being attached to the King of England, were soldiers of a very different stamp. They fought with us on some of the most glorious of our fields, notably those of Fontenoy and Minden; they took a distinguished share in the defence of Gibraltar; and once, in 1752, two battalions actually landed in India and were severely engaged in the bloody action of Cuddalore. Lastly, as the King's German legion, they did admirable service as mercenaries of England in sundry quarters of Europe, and particularly in the Peninsula under Wellington, where their infantry was esteemed little inferior to our own, and their cavalry proved itself, in all respects except reckless bravery, to be decidedly superior. A British division covered by vedettes of German horse felt itself to be absolutely secure; and at Garcia Hernandez the Hanoverian dragoons delivered so brilliant an attack upon the French infantry on its retreat from the field of Salamanca that the feat remains a classic in the tale of the achievements of cavalry.

But there is another side to this picture. All armies, and for that matter all regiments, prefer the tradition and the study of their victories to the recollection and analysis of their defeats, and they extend the same indulgence to the friendly armies which have fought by their side. This is an extremely dangerous practice; and Germans who boast of their share in the conquest of the British empire should be careful not to provoke the disinterment of incidents discreditable to their countrymen. The Hanoverian army, in common with all other armies, has had its bad periods, and 1793 was one of them. The proofs of the fact are at this moment under the writer's eye, and they are, not pleasant reading. Even in the Peninsular war the King's German legion showed very grave defects. The men, for one thing, were terribly prone to desertion; and the few Brunswickers who were with the army were even worse than the Hanoverians. The German is by nature a long-neck creature, and this athletic weakness is not without influence upon his constancy as a man of war. The general officers, also, were in many instances disappointing. Among the useless generals of whom Wellington contrived to rid himself in 1812-13 no fewer than three out of seven were Germans, and the worst of all, after 700 years of intelligence and for pusillanimity in command, was a brigadier of cavalry, whose misconduct, due to lack of moral and by no means of physical courage, at one moment involved Wellington in very serious difficulties.

Donauworth. But to return to our original question. Have the British met the Germans within the last two centuries as enemies in the field, and with what results? Let us begin our answer by recalling first the action of the Schellenberg fought by Marlborough on July 2, 1704, upon reaching the Danube in his memorable march. The Schellenberg, a bell-shaped hill with half a mile of flat top, overlooks the town of Donauworth, and had been occupied by some 12,000 French and Bavarians, who were expecting reinforcements immediately. It was this last circumstance, combined with the fact that he shared the chief command upon alternate days with the Margrave of Baden, that induced Marlborough to attack at all hazards, with only a part of his army, the remainder being still far in rear owing to execrable roads. The force under his hand consisted of 6,900 picked infantry, of whom 1,820 were British; 16 battalions, of which four were British and about 40 squadrons, of which 13 were British. The picked infantry led the way, with the remaining battalions in support and the cavalry mass in rear; and in advance of all were two parties of grenadiers of the 1st (Grenadier) Guards under Lord Mordaunt and Colonel Munden. The entrenchment could only be approached under a cross-fire of artillery, and the assailants suffered so terribly that a portion of them gave way; whereupon the enemy swarmed out of their shelter to make an end of them with the bayonet. The situation was saved by the 1st Guards, the Royal Scots (two battalions), and the Royal Welch, who stood like rocks in spite of heavy losses, and after desperate fighting beat back the counter-attack. The assault was then renewed, but the enemy had by this time drawn all their forces to the threatened point, and after a hard struggle the storming columns wavered once more, and were only brought forward again by an advance of the cavalry to their support. At last the main body of Marlborough's army began to come up on the enemy's flank, but even then the Bavarians still held their own in their front, and the Greys had actually been dismounted to sustain the attack on foot when by a final effort the entrenchments were carried. Then the resistance collapsed and the brave defenders ran away in headlong rout, with Marlborough's cavalry in the thick of them. Hundreds were cut down or taken before they could reach the haven of Donauworth; hundreds more were drowned; and of 12,000 gallant soldiers not more than 3,000 remained the camp of the Elector of Bavaria. But they made the allies pay dearly for their victory. The whole affair lasted only for an hour and a half, and in that short time there fell of the assailants 5,200 men, of whom over 1,500 were British—namely, 29 officers and 407 men killed, 88 officers and 1,631 men wounded. Every one of the four British battalions suffered 200 casualties or more; out of 17 officers of the Guards only five escaped unhurt; in the Royal Scots 10 officers were killed and wounded, and in the Royal Welch 16. Among the five of the Guards that escaped, singularly enough, were Mordaunt and Munden, the two who with three battalions through his clothes and the other with five bullets through his hat, out of the 82 Grenadiers whom they led to the attack only 27 returned. Altogether it was a fine little action, most gallantly disputed upon both sides. Let us not, however, omit to mention that six weeks later, on August 14, the Royal Scots lost 12 more officers at Blenheim, the Royal Welch three battalions through his clothes and the other with five bullets through his hat; out of the 82 Grenadiers whom they led to the attack only 27 returned. ## THE PRICE WHICH GERMANY MUST PAY

PRUSSIAN METHODS NEARING A DEBACLE

This is No Time for Peace Proposals; Distinguished Journalist Gives His Views

The other day at an English seaport I watched our men going out to war—marines, a line regiment or two, and their equipments and supplies. I saw them H. W. Massingham in the London News and Leader. The soldiers seemed a little under stature (the marines were magnificent), but thick-set and hardy, and full of the kind of cheerfulness which comradeship, excitement, and a little beer (not much) breeds in the soldier's British heart. There were some good-byes, mostly spoken in fun or stoical good humor, a few tears from women with babies, a group of handsome, rather vague young officers on their chargers, a sharp-eyed sergeant or two keeping the line, and the usual accompaniments of a soldier's moving, be it to the new barracks or far-off battle-fields. "Gawd bless 'em and Gawd bless 'em," soliloquized a rather exultant comrade, due to march a little later. "God bless what I thought. War? The playing of men by men who a few weeks ago thought no harm of each other? Hardly. God bless rather the instinctive readiness, the simple, self-surrender, of average humanity, and grant that those who wield such tremendous influence over these great qualities do not too grossly abuse them.

No Time for Peace Proposals.

But if the victims—for many of those I saw will be victims—go willingly or unconsciously to the altar, is it for us who stay behind to stop the fatal, long-drawn-out procession at the earliest, auspicious hour? It is, indeed. But has that hour arrived? Can we, for whom war arrests all our happier activities, do more for the moment than try and conduct it with dignity, without wild vindictiveness or exaggeration, and with a steady eye on what a new Europe born of this convulsion may bring forth? Peace has been talked of, and from a quarter where we all expected to hear it, Germany has throughout conducted her campaign, a battle of blood and iron and a battle of words, and she has largely fought the latter to win the ear of America, which has drawn in so many of her sons. It is to America, therefore, that she has addressed the suggestion which commits her to nothing either to-day or on any morrow when the fortune of war may take a favorable turn on the Rhine or the Vistula) that she will accept a "driving" conflict, were it not that the allies had pledged themselves, at our prompting, to a "fight to a finish," involving the obliteration of her empire. Let me examine this plea. It is a kind of proclamation. The most tremendous machinery of war ever fashioned by man's hand has torn its way through two thickly-peopled countries, leaving behind a trail of fire, ruin, and indiscriminating pillage. It has occupied one capital and reached to within a few miles of another. It has violated the entire spirit and much of the letter of the Hague convention, mixing soldiers and civilians in its vengeance and tearing up some of the oldest and most beautiful landmarks of the earlier life of man. As Mr. George said in his wonderful speech, it has left an ineffaceable mark of harshness, of a coldly cruel purpose, pivoting on a deliberate plan of terror, on the state life of Europe.

Not a "Drawn" War.

Now it is suddenly checked. It will probably be defeated altogether. Its vast scheme of offensive war shakes and is distracted between the double assault on it. A drawn war? Drawn on what lines of equality between untouched Germany, ruined Belgium, and shattered France? Drawn with what hope of a peace in which alarmed but not fallen pride may find the place which an awakened public spirit in the nations is bound to assign it? With what prospect of securing, let us say, a large proportionate reduction of armaments, a reduced period of military service, the setting up of an international watch committee for peace and arbitration.

Germany must remain a great national force. If only she is to take her share in these operations, it will be argued. Yes, a hundred times yes. Wild things are thrown out from the uncalculating heat which war engenders, and which Germany's conduct of this particular war, let me add, has driven to fever point. But no sane politician talks of destroying the German people, or exhibiting the Kaiser in a cage, or even of imposing a Napoleonic peace. The question is whether Germany is seriously approachable with a tremendous war-force in existence, of which her rulers can say that it has met half Europe in arms and suffered no smashing defeat, and fully subject to the horrible ethic of war-making which her Treitschkes and Bernhards have built up.

Exorcising the Prussian Spirit.

All we say is that human nature is not equal to making peace with so alert, so formidable a foe. If there was real danger from the spirit which has mastered Germany it cannot yet have been exorcised. If there was none, then the war was unjust and unnecessary, and should be stopped to-morrow. It is a terrible calamity, a black page on the book of our life, but it is to be unrepented evil in its issue as well as in its progress. I think not. But in saying so, I draw a profound distinction between war for revenge and war for an idea.

Germany must pay, and pay heavily, but no one seeks to make a triumph of her, and set Cologne cathedral ablaze to match the atrocities of Senlis and Louvain. Nor, if one aims at a European community widely different from that which the Prussianization of the German military school must have evolved for us and for the western continent, can we think of an exclusion or a dispersion of the Teutonic element. It will be there—in its place—softened, one hopes and believes, by a displacement of Prussian autocracy. It is indeed on the southern German and the Austrian stock, and their part in the coming debacle of Prussian methods at the hands of Socialism and Liberalism, that observers will do well to fix their thoughts. The unwisdom of the allies would be to set as to destroy or cripple the internal forces that may yet make Germany free.

WAS PERMITTED TO SEE THE KAISER

"MAGNIFICENT SIGHT" THAT ENDED IN FARCE

French Officer in German Lines; Emperor Waited for Reduction of Nancy

(Correspondence, London Chronicle)

Opposite me is a man who has seen the Kaiser retreat. He is a lieutenant of artillery and he was taken prisoner by the Germans in the early part of the battle on the plateau of Nancy.

During the last few days of August the German army, which had crossed into France from Lorraine, advanced on Nancy and attempted to storm that part of the plateau in front of the stronghold. The French force was greatly inferior in numbers in the early stages of the fighting, but had some batteries of the much dreaded 75's. On the slope immediately facing the German advance guard a large number of old cannon, now almost obsolete, were placed as a blind, while the deadly lighter guns pounded away from a hidden position in the rear.

The enemy were completely deceived, and for 15 hours bombarded the useless pieces, from which only a few shots were fired. My travelling companion was one of a small detachment in charge of the old guns. While reconnoitering some distance down the slope he was surprised by a German scouting party and taken prisoner. During the evening the Germans, thinking that the batteries they had been shelling all day were silenced, attempted a cavalry charge. The French gunners in the rear waited until they were about 800 yards distant, and the order was then passed along the line "At 500 yards—Fire!" Nothing could be seen in the dim light, but the onrush slackened.

Theory—And Practice—Of War.

A minute or two passed, and then the order was again given, "At 600 yards—by batteries—Fire!" By this time the horsemen were perceptibly stopped, and on a patch of ground lit up by the moon could be seen masses heaped up, and here and there a riderless horse rising to its feet and dashing away. For the rest of the night there was complete quiet.

Meanwhile my informant was led away to the rear of the German lines, and was "quietly" questioned regarding the French positions. He refused to say a word, and was thereupon threatened with death.

"I am a prisoner of war," he said, "and you may not shoot me."

"You may understand the theory of war," replied the German staff officer, "but you evidently don't realize that it is quite different from the practice."

He persistently declined to give his captors any information which might be useful to them, and was thereupon searched and placed in a tent to sleep with a guard at the entrance. Next morning he was given no breakfast, but at midday he received something to eat, and was led to the headquarters of the general staff.

Here he again refused to answer any questions, but it was hinted to him that he would be given one more chance before sentence was passed on him. While being taken back to his tent between guards he was jeered at and insulted by the soldiers. At one point a number of German officers with field-glasses were looking at a bill some distance away, on which could be seen a large force of cavalry.

"Something Magnificent."

"See," said one of the officers, "I will show you something magnificent. You will be the first Frenchman to have seen the Kaiser since the war began."

The prisoner took the proffered field-glasses and saw that the horsemen were in parade order, and that in front of them was a group of officers, most of whom wore medals.

"Now," said the owner of the field-glasses, "look a little to the right."

German infantrymen, when the men with the flashing steel were a few yards away, threw up their hands, and shouted in heavy Teutonic accent, "Camarades, Je suis Alsacien." When they had been taken prisoners it was proved that this was merely a ruse to escape death.

Shot for Giving a Signal.

A company in one trench had lost its captain and one of the lieutenants. The remaining lieutenant went forward during a lull in the bombardment to look at the surrounding country and was taken prisoner. Before leaving he had told his men that if he blew his whistle they were to retire to the right.

After being caught he saw that if his men stayed there was no hope for them, so suddenly taking the whistle out of his pocket he gave the signal.

The Germans, realising what had happened shot him on the spot.

During the first day of the battle when the French were successful there was a bayonet charge, and some of the German infantrymen, when the men with the flashing steel were a few yards away, threw up their hands, and shouted in heavy Teutonic accent, "Camarades, Je suis Alsacien." When they had been taken prisoners it was proved that this was merely a ruse to escape death.

At one spot the French wounded lay on the ground, suffering for 18 hours, because each time the French ambulances attempted to reach them they were bombarded.

While the French were retreating my informant fell beneath a horse and had his head crushed. He was unconscious for several days and was taken by slow stages down to his home in Marseilles.

When I met him he was on his way to a depot prior to returning to his regiment. At Marseilles a French interpreter attached to the British general staff told me that the Germans were shooting all such interpreters whom they captured on the ground that Frenchmen could not serve with the British army, and must, therefore, be treated as spies.

TO BLACKMAIL BRUSSELS?

The London correspondent of the Daily Dispatch learns from a private source that a commission of German art valuers has arrived in Brussels for the purpose of drawing up an inventory and estimate of the numerous art galleries and other treasures of the Belgian capital. The object of the commission has not been disclosed, but the rumor is current that an ultimatum will eventually be presented to the Belgian government and to the Brussels civic authorities threatening the removal to the Fatherland of the various galleries' contents, unless the amounts fixed by the valuation are paid in cash by the city and province. This new form of blackmail would be quite in accordance with the Kaiser's methods and what is known of Germany's financial straits.

Men can do as original new as ever if they had but the courage, even the insight. Heroic souls in old times had no more opportunities than we have, but they used them.—Kingsley.

To the Editor, — The pointed humor of your issue of to-night, that "Lords Haldane and Reading and Mr. Lloyd George have been able to leave England owing to Sir Richard McBride's presence in London will no doubt draw the attention of 'some people to the strange fact that at a crisis in the history of the province the premier can feel free to go home for more than a week," Speaking seriously as a newcomer to Victoria, I have been more than surprised at some of the features of political life that no observant man could fail to see. Nothing, however, has surprised me more than this latest piece of news. I had the pleasure and privilege of accompanying other ministers on a visitation of the government's subject, and in my private conversations with the eminent proposers before the attorney-general representing the absent premier, and the proposals were recommended in forcible speeches by one of two ministers well-known in the city. The attorney-general made a reply which could not have been more affable or courteous, but which far from his opinion, to do away with the demonstration of his position, of equality and privacy. In the course of it he explained that the premier would make an important statement soon after his return from his trip east. To my great surprise this chief spokesman of the clergy stood up and said he felt sure he spoke for his brethren when he said that the deputations were perfectly satisfied with the reply of the attorney-general. Now, I should very much like to know whether, after waiting some weeks for the promised statement (and the much more important action of my fellow-ministers are still satisfied). If the prime minister is in London on business connected with the finances of the provinces, he is surely not very complimentary to his ministry and his finance. I presume he would be one of those who have been spared from the cabinet just now to look after the interests of the province in London. But why should the premier go away and render initiative on the part of the government impossible for the time being, and why should there be a minister of finance if he cannot do the work of his department's duty, for the are the financial interests of the British Columbia in London and not the premier's. Perhaps, sir, you can enlighten a newcomer who knows not the ways of the political life of the province save what no intelligent man could

We should have more confidence in the world which begins at home and diverges into a large humanity than in the world-wide philanthropy which begins at the outside and converges into egotism. A man may be a benefactor of the world, but he is not a benefactor for the well-being of the whole world, and should live in the world as a citizen of the world; but he may have, and should have, a preference for the particular part in which he is born and lives, and should be a benefactor of that part. He may, and ought to, go abroad, but there should be no respect, nor there, for self-boasting charity which neglects all objects of commiseration near and around it, and which is engaged in the relief of such of misery and woe as may be met with in the remotest quarter for the sake of talking about

To the Editors:—Since your correspondent of October 31, signed "Common Sense," invites criticism in his concluding sentence, I venture to point out some of the contradictions in his own statements. However, I will agree that the government, civil or national, should do for the interests of the majority, or rather the interests of all of its people. But I fail to see how reducing the wage from the prevailing current rate, 42 to $2, will be helping the majority, because the city of New York can only do so at the best under a certain system of economy which is prevailing all the time, both in the mentioned boom days and in its reflex days, we are suffering from now. That amount of necessary work that will insure its existence in any particular year, is referred to as the "necessary boom wage" that are referred to. It would be well to remember that the argument for those were always the already increased cost of living. So the "boom" may be dropped from the wages and replaced by the work "necessary." And the "necessary" is not unfailingly the non-employer of labor in its capacity, are only wanting to maintain at least that which is essential to their existence that which are necessary under the increased boom prices since the hard times began. And the members of the labor unions also recognize that 400 million dollars of boom wages are necessary. But instead of paying the amount stipulated in the letter, $1.50 per day, since it is in the best interests of the greatest number to have the work spread over a great amount of time with our own

There has been quite a rush since the outbreak of the war of Germans resident in Britain to change their names. The reason is obvious, and the American secure of never a transition as possible, remarks the Newcastle Daily Chronicle. A German named Schmilz has almost invariably transformed himself into Smith, and every German named Fuchs has hastened on settling in his country to convert himself into Fox. # What are Peps?

Peps is the name bestowed upon a new scientific preparation put up in tablet, or pastille form, which provides an entirely new and effective treatment for coughs, colds and lung and throat troubles generally.

Did it never occur to you as peculiar that when you have a cough or a cold, or any chest trouble, you should apply medicine—not to your lungs, but to your stomach?

Look at it the other way round. Suppose you suffered from some stomach complaint—indigestion or ulceration. How strange you would think it if you were asked to take a medicine which had to be breathed in, and which went—not to your stomach, but to your lungs and breathing passages?

There is no connection between the stomach and the lungs (see diagram below), and when for a cold or a cough or any chest complaint you take some medicine, such as liquid cough mixtures, syrups, lozenges, which go—not to your lungs, but to your stomach—you are wasting time.

Peps—this newest remedy for coughs, colds, and lung troubles—goes to the lungs and breathing-tubes, direct. Peps are really pine fumes and certain highly beneficial medicinal extracts specially prepared by a new scientific process and then condensed into tablet form. It is like making a breathable gas solid!

You put a "Pep" on your tongue and let it dissolve. As it does so the healing essence it contains turns into vapor, and you BREATHE them direct to your lungs and air passages!

These healing essences pass down your breathing-tubes, bathing all the inflamed surfaces, which no liquid or solid matter can ever reach, in health-giving pine fumes, and carrying health and healing wherever they penetrate.

These tissue-strengthening, pleasant fumes, so liberated from the dissolving Peps, are not only healing in their operation, they are antiseptic. They kill the germs of consumption, catarrh, and those many and varied throat and lung troubles so common to-day. Peps fumes—like the fumes from nature's Pine woods—get direct to the lungs and chest, and give instant relief to colds, tightness, bronchitis, etc. In short, Peps bring pine forest air to your home!

You have a nasty night cough? Take a Pep before going to bed—your cough will not trouble you! Your lungs are a little weak, and going from the warm house into the cold air outside makes you cough? Just before going out put a Pep in your mouth—there will be no coughing! Your throat feels "stuffed up," your chest feels tight, and your breathing troubles? Peps will put matters right for you very quickly.

Peps, while gradually turning to vapor as soon as put into the mouth, will retain their goodness indefinitely if kept dry. Each little Peps pastille is packed in an air-tight wrapping, which is easily removed, and they are packed in neat tin packet boxes. They are not sticky (the minister of public speaker can carry a few loose in the vest pocket); they do not spoil the appetite and ruin the digestion, like cough syrups and mixtures do; and they DO cure coughs, colds and lung trouble!

Just as the out-door treatment for consumption—the "breathing" treatment—is now admitted to be the only rational treatment, so the "Peps" treatment for colds and lung troubles is the only rational home treatment.

Peps cure catarrh, coughs, bronchitis, sore throat, tightness or aching across the chest, difficulty in breathing, night cough, hoarseness, asthma, laryngitis, smoker's throat, etc. Best for children because free from opium, morphine, or any poison.

All druggists and stores sell Peps at 50c a box or 3 for $1.25. Should your dealer be out of stock, order direct (post paid) from Peps Co., Dupont St., Toronto, or 52 Princess St., Winnipeg.

FREE TRIAL.—The proprietors wish this great discovery to be widely appreciated, and have decided to offer a free trial packet to all persons who would like to test this unique remedy. Cut out this article, write across it the name of this paper, and mail it to Peps Co., Toronto, or 52 Princess Street, Winnipeg, enclosing 1 cent stamp to pay for return postage. A free trial packet of Peps will be mailed you by return. If you have a friend suffering from a cough, cold, or any throat or lung trouble, hand this on.

The admiralty estimates that it takes 60 working days to complete a warship costing two million pounds. In this time the warship had not only to be built, launched, armored, fitted out with machinery, armament, and so on, but tested by speed, gun and torpedo trials.

LIVELY MEMORIES OF LORD CHARLES BERESFORD

From The London Chronicle.

We all, for the Englishness in us, like Lord Charles Beresford as a man of the "bull dog breed," and there will be a wide welcome for his "Memoirs" (reprinted, two volumes, 30s net), which are published this morning. On the wrapper of one volume there is a picture of the old three-decker Marlborough, which Lord Charles joined as a naval cadet on March 28, 1861; his ship of happiest memory, although, when he stepped on board her "the bos'n's mate said, 'That white-faced little beggar ain't long for this world, Dick.'"

On the wrapper of the other volume there is a picture of the great battleship King Edward VII., on which the former maddy, now a full British admiral, flew his flag for the last time, retiring from a career which is very well, although casually, summed up in his remark, "As luck would have it, my career has been of a singularly varied character." It has, indeed, and he tells the story of it with vigor and "go," and yet in a simple, sailor-like way which is, perhaps, the thing one likes best of all in his book.

A Very Active Life. He has been a man of action in the individual sense as well as in the larger sense of his profession, and thus he has not only had a varied life but a very full life. There can be nothing he has not done, nobody worth knowing he has not met, hardly any part of the world he has not visited. Here is a little summary by his friend, Mr. Cope Cornford, who writes notes in the autobiography of the personal misadventures which have befallen Lord Charles.

His broken—his chest—home—piece of which was cut out in his boyhood, leaving a cavity—referred to as "right hand, foot, five ribs, one collar bone three times; the other once, his nose three times; but owing to his extraordinary physique and strict regimen he is younger and stronger at the time of writing than most men of half his age."

"Well done, Condor!" One may well repeat that admiral's signal down at the bombardment of Alexandria which first brought Lord Charles into fame, and made him a hero of the British "man-in-the-street." He puts the incident in a corner of his book, saying merely that—

"Any notoriety attached to the part borne by the Condor in the action was due to accidental circumstances. She happened to fight apart from the rest of the fleet and in full view of the foreign warships and merchant vessels; and in obedience to the orders of the admiral she had on board the correspondent of the Times, the late Mr. Moberly Bell. The Condor was actually under way when I received instructions to embark Mr. Bell, Mr. Frederic Villiers, the artist, war correspondent, by permission of the admiral, had been my guest on board for several days."

That, however, is not all the story, because, as a private letter now published tells us, the night before the bombardment Lord Charles turned out all hands on the Condor and made them a speech.

"I said that the admiral's orders were to keep out of range until an opportunity occurred. So I said to the men, 'Now, my lads, if you will rely upon me to find the opportunity, I will rely upon you to make the most of it when it occurs.'"

It did occur, and the Condor tackled the Marabout fort in a fashion quite her own and very characteristic of the Beresfordian spirit which runs through all Lord Charles' pages.

The Old Navy. He gives us a vivid picture of the old navy in which the cat was still flourishing, and always he makes the sailor-man human, companionable, often lovable. Humor goes with him through the years, as when the captain of the Marlborough was fishing from the stern gallery of that ship and young Beresford caught hold of the line and put a red herring on it. He was constantly in red, and constantly out of red, and this, being so, he went with him when he began politics.

When he did for the first time at a Kerry election in 1873, before the days of the Ballot act. Speaking of the help he gave to his candidate, he says:

"Having polled the tenants, I was strolling in the street when I was stopped by one of my grand-fellow-countrymen, a man of about 6 feet 5. 'Any for Home Rule?' says he. 'To hell with your Home Rule,' said I. Whereupon he hit me over the back of the nose, knocking me over backwards, and effectually silenced my arguments for the space of an hour and a half."

Two years later Lord Charles himself entered parliament as member for Waterford, and that brought him into friendship with Disraeli, who said to him on one occasion:

"My boy, don't you know that it's your first duty to vote with your party? If everyone voted according to his convictions, there would be no party system. And without a party system the government could not be carried on, as you will discover in time."

Everingly Lord Charles did not quite know then what to make of "Dizzy" as a man—at all events that is the impression this leaves.

We stayed at Sandringham and went for long walks together, during which Disraeli talked and laughed with the greatest enjoyment. But I remember how in the pauses of the conversations he would stand still and, glass in eye, dreamily surveying the landscape, would make some observation as "The air is balmy . . . and serene," or "The foliage is stunted, but productive," with the most weighty and measured emphasis, as though these were prophetic utterances. I was quite bewildered for I did not then know whether he was serious or were indulging a recedite wit. He was a visionary, dwelling much in a world of his own, and I know now that he was perfectly natural and serious on these occasions.

Yarns By the Way.

Wherever he has gone "Charlie" Beresford has carried with him the reputation of being a good story-teller. There are enough admirable yarns in this book to confirm him in that reputation, and one of two of them may be sampled; as how he rode a pig down Park lane—the only man, he believes, who ever did it.

"As I was returning home from a dance in the calm of a summer morning, accompanied by a friend, a herd of swine came by, and among them a huge animal trotted prominently. I was told it was that I would ride that pig into Piccadilly, dashed into the herd, took a flying leap upon the pig's back, and galloped all down Park lane, pursued with shouts by the swineherd. As I turned into Piccadilly the swineherd caught me a bout on the head, knocking me off my steed, but not before I won my bet."

Another time Lord Charles' wanderings that he would drive round Bath Row, an exercise entirely forbidden by the regulations, and he did it this wise.

A party assembled to watch the event, and while they were looking out for me a man driving the park water-cart came by and turned the water on them. Then the company, looking closer at the driver, perceived that I had won my bet."

It was in Hyde park, too, that Lord Charles, the owner of a four-in-hand club coach, was driving King Edward, then the Prince of Wales, when—

A man who was quite unknown to me shouted, 'Plo, Chawley, low are yer? I see you've got 'White' up alongside yer.' 'Some of your friends seem very familiar,' said the prince, who took the remark with perfect good humor."

When Lord Charles was junior lord of the admiralty, "responsible for the provision of coal and stores among other trifles," a clerk came into his room with a sheet of papers in one hand and a wet quill in the other, and this is what happened:

"Will you sign the estimates?" says he. "What?" said I. "Will you sign the estimates for the year?" he repeated. "My good friend," I said, "I have not seen them." The clerk looked mildly perturbed. He said: "The other lords have signed them, sir; it would be very inconvenient if you don't." "I am very sorry," said I. "But I am afraid I am inconvenient in this office already. But I shall certainly not sign the estimates." The clerk's countenance betrayed consternation. "I must tell the first lord, sir," said he, as one who presents an ultimatum. "I don't care a fig whom you tell," said I. "I cannot sign the estimates because I have not read them."

Nor did he sign them. They were brought before the house of commons without his signature, the first lord saying it really did not matter, and Lord Charles' point of view being that he would not take responsibility for a document he had not seen.

Both as a man of action with a career behind him of singular variety and color, and as a man who takes the time now and then to think things out, Lord Charles is an entirely agreeable companion, and his "Memoirs" make a book which will be read even amid the tumult of Armageddon.

THE TULIP BED.

Almost any city dweller may have a tulip bed if he will follow a few simple directions. In October spade up your geranium plot, then give the seed-store men 30s for a peck of rare and costly bulbs. Insert the bulbs carefully in the loose soil an inch or so deep and nine inches apart each way by carpenter's rule. Bake the surface over gently, until it is level and neat, and your tulip bed is ready to be enjoyed. A tulip bed in winter is the most enjoyable thing out of doors. It is a favorite promenade for small boys, and they will come a mile to walk on your tulips if they learn that you have any planted. Last Sunday, while I was at divine worship in the streets near by came into my yard and held a running broad jump contest on my tulips. When Maggie, the maid, sought, in an unkind moment, to stop their innocent fun, they pelted her with tulip bulbs, bless their little hearts! If located besides a fence, a tulip bed makes a soft and safe landing place for young athletes pole-vauling from the adjoining yard. It is as much enjoyed by millmen, especially after rains, as a spot to plant their feet, while stepping over the fence to deliver milk at the next house. I expect to raise a fine crop of milkweed in my tulip bed next summer. The ashmen, too, have a bright minute in their gritty and grimy day; that is when they discover a tulip bed upon which to pile ash-boxes. Dogs find a tulip bed useful as a savings bank. From surface indications I judge that the bones deposited in my tulip bed now number thirty-two, not counting the eight bones I laid for the bulbs. I believe in encouraging thrift, so when I see my forsaken though four-foot depositors excavating my thirty shillings worth of bulbs I never run out and kick them in the ribs, as many a hard-boiled man would do. I am particularly careful not to hurt their feelings if they are large dogs with regular teeth. "Life."

No preacher is blamed to but time which gives us the same train and turn of thought that older people have in vain tried to put into our heads before. Dean Swift.

"It Is Not the English Custom"

Field Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood told some interesting stories at a meeting which he addressed in London recently. Referring to the charges of brutality made against the Germans, he said:

"We need not fear that the British soldier will ever descend to making reprisals. Thirty-five years ago I was commanding 18,000 men, who fought against 23,000 brave Zulus for five hours and a half. They attacked with the undaunted courage of savages who did not realize the effect of modern rifles, and the following morning we buried, besides a vast number elsewhere, 834 close up to one face of the battered wagons behind which our men had stood. When the fight was over I desired a few friendly Zulus who were attached to the companies under my command to collect men of every regiment, promising for each an injured man a stick of tobacco. Next morning there was a group outside my tent of magnificent specimens of humanity. When I got all the information I required, I said: 'Two months ago, when your skirmish our doctors cared for your wounded, and a few days later you overwhelmed our camp, killing 1,500 of our men, you did not spare those who had been attending on your own brothers. Will one of you say why I should not kill you all?' Said a young giant: 'May I speak, O master? You ask why you should not kill us? I answer, because it is not the English custom.'"

First Duty of a Citizen.

"This is the character our race bears in the North, South, East and West Africa; and I hope it may never continue, for reprisals are not only useless, but would sensibly lessen the grand fighting value of our soldiers. The troops at the assault of Delhi in 1857, when embittered by horrible stories, many exaggerated, and at Delhi in 1858, were seen deliberately lifting women and little children out of the line of fire. Such conduct is a part of our national inheritance."

Sir Evelyn said this war would test Britons and deepen the spirit of self-sacrifice and devotion of duty. Our people were realizing now that the first duty of a citizen was to fit himself to defend his country. That was his time to repair his refusal to admit the accuracy of this truism was due to the unceasing watch of our seamen in mine-strewn waters.

Story of the Kaiser.

"In June, 1889, when the German emperor saw the Aldershot division carrying out tactical operations, pointing to some cavalry in the distance, he asked me: 'How many squadrons have you got in the field to-day?' I replied: 'Sixteen, your majesty,' when he said: 'If you will come and see my manoeuvres in September I will show you 64 squadrons.'"

"We admit the Germans are brave, but so far they have hidden over our regiments. Their horses are trained for two years before they are passed into the ranks, and while it is impossible for one man to fight three or four with a certainty of success, I have always believed that individuality of our cavalry are better horsemen, and will certainly attack without hesitation twice their number of Germans."

Sir Evelyn told a good story of Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien: "In 1882 I was left 12 miles outside Alexandria with six battalions to cover a frontage of over five miles, which in the previous week had been penetrated by the enemy. I sent an order into Alexandria for a smart subaltern, who was to go to the khedive's stable and all the soldier's shops, and produce in one day some mounted infantry. Smith-Dorrien received the order at 1.30 p.m., and at 6.30, with 51 horses, three miles, and a donkey, carrying Derbyshire men, the Sherwood Foresters, few of whom had ridden before, he passed me at Daxlah, went out into the desert, engaged an Egyptian outpost, killed its commander, and never let them inside our line again."

French "Always Reading."

A story of Sir John French followed. "When I inspected his regiment, 'The Buffs,' a major, many years ago, I asked the colonel, pointing to him: 'Of what value?' He replied: 'Forever reading military books.' He has been reading ever since. In 1885, when we

SPLENDID PLUCK.

Tommy hates to "give in," and a story told by Capt. Buchanan Dunlop, who was sent home injured by a shell, shows that even one bullet is not sufficient to quell the fighting spirit of our soldiers. Capt. Dunlop addressed a meeting a few days ago at Reading with the object of securing more recruits, and during the course of his speech he said: "I was talking to an officer of my own regiment in town yesterday—he also was wounded—and he told me about a fight on Wednesday week, when one of his men; lying just in front of him under heavy shell fire, turned to him and said: 'Sir, may I retire?' 'Why?' asked the officer, 'Sir,' replied the man, 'I have been hit three times. That is the sort of spirit that our men are showing out there.'"

ARENA WILL OPEN TO-NIGHT

ROCHON OUT FOR THE YEAR

Mike Mitchell Likely to Guard Portland Nets This Year; Skating-Prices Reduced

Rowland's band has been secured once more for the skating sessions at the Arena, and it is expected that there will be a record breaking crowd at to-night's inaugural. The reduction in prices is in keeping with the business of the coast and while the expenses of an artificial ice arena are heavy, the management feel that the support which the citizens of the capital gave them in past seasons is worthy of a financial sacrifice by the arena management in the general depression. Skating will be in order every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights, also Saturday morning. The annual rink carnival will be announced later, while the hockey matches will be booked here on Friday nights. The Victoria club will start practicing immediately, the balance of the professional squad reporting here next week.

Portland's chances of winning the Pacific Coast hockey title received a shock yesterday when a dispatch from the east announced that Geo. Rochon, their speedy point player, would be unable to get into the game this year. The announcement is also made that Mike Mitchell, the Winnipeg boy, will be tried out between the nets by the Portland club in the event of Lesieur not coming to the coast. Mitchell played with the amateur teams in Winnipeg and Victoria before going to the Boundary league, where he made good in rattling style. Vancouver sport writers now state that Frank Patrick will get back into the game again this winter, giving the Terranals a strong inner works in Lehman, Griffiths and Patrick.

Fort William, Nov. 3.—George Rochon, the former Fort William youth who has made quite a name for himself in the amateur and professional hockey world the past few years will never play another game on the steel blades, according to advices brought here by a friend of the star defence player.

Rochon injured his knee to such an extent while playing baseball early in the summer that he has been laid up in bed at his home in Winnipeg for many weeks, requiring the attendance of a nurse.

When here last Saturday, his father, E. J. Rochon, stated that George was improving, but would be out of the hockey game this season, and probably forever. It is feared that he has a tubercular knee.

Montreal, Nov. 3.—With two exceptions all the available players of last season's Terranals have been signed up. One of the hold-outs is the redoubtable "Minnie" McGillin. The other is Jack Walker.

Allan Davidson has gone to war, but Manager Marshall expects to fill up the hole. Davidson leaves on the forward line without much trouble. He has Foxton, Claude and "Cully" Wilson, and some Ontario Hockey association candidates for places.

Y. M. C. A. hockey team champions of the City League, decided last night to play off for the Guy cup at Westminister, providing suitable financial arrangements can be made.

Saskatchewan under the jurisdiction of the association to take part and help in a charity bospital of its own. The details of this project will have to be worked out at later meetings, but it will be one of the chief items of business at the semi-annual of the branch, which takes place on November 11. It is proposed that the clubs instead of opening the season with their usual President vs. Vice-president matches, start off with the Charity affair. It would only take a few nights to wind up and would serve to create more interest than the ordinary opening. Here in Winnipeg several clubs have signified their intention of holding Charity bospital of their own, but it has been suggested that one mammoth carnival take place on Sunday plans to that run off in Winnipeg a few years ago. Thus, Love was the chief man in that undertaking and he will probably be asked to take over this affair.

The bospital would not only be open to members of clubs but outsiders, including the fair sex, who welcome a game or so, would be invited so as to swell the entry as large as possible. It is most likely that prizes could be secured, from some firm looking for a little advertising or anxious to help the affair along. Though no definite entrance fee has been decided upon it is most likely that a charge of one or two dollars per rink would be taxed. With the many curling clubs in affiliation with the Manitoba association taking this matter up there is no doubt the Patriotic fund would be boosted to the extent of several thousand dollars. The Ontario association has passed a resolution asking every one of its 5,000 members to contribute $1 per month to the war cause.

ANNUAL BALL

It was announced this morning that the Capital baseball club will hold their opening ball at the Alexandra club on November 20. Invitations will be issued within a week.

REMARKED ON THE SIDE

Connie Mack Decides It's Time For a Change

In asking for Watsons on Coombs, Bender and Plank, Connie Mack, the fastest player in the American league, has seen the hand written on the wall and is willing to part with his high-priced veterans rather than let the players get all the coin. The Athletics did not make a cent this season for the club owners, despite the fact that they had a pennant-winning club. The high salaries that Mack was compelled to pay his players cut the profits to nothing and the tail manager is said to be willing to deliberately weaken his club in the face of the opposition of the Federal league. The sale of Collins to New York is one of his reported moves, while with Coombs, Bender and Plank shifted to other scenes, his pay-roll will be considerably lightened. Plank will likely retire from baseball rather than go to another club, while Coombs' injury sustained in a world's series game two years ago, has rendered him unfit for a major league berth.

Scandal Breaks Out in Connaught Cup Series

The C. P. R. Association Football club of Fort William has been found out. In the recent Connaught Cup competition at Winnipeg, the C. P. R. team, it would appear, played an ineligible player, knowing him to be ineligible. There is no doubt, the club having admitted the offence. The Dominion Football association has consequently ordered the return of the medals which were awarded to the Fort William team as runners up, and has given all the Fort William games to the various opposing clubs. While the discovery fortunately makes no difference to the ownership of the cup, one is entitled to ask how it was that the D. F. A. officials who were gathered in state at Winnipeg agreed to allow such a flagrant breach of the rules to be put across. It was put across, certainly, and it is extremely doubtful if the deception would have been discovered but for the action of somebody in Fort William who put the association wise. If this gentleman had seen fit to keep a closer hold on his knowledge the fraud might very easily have gone undetected, which looks like pretty poor management on the part of an organization which professes to be governing all the Association footballers in the Dominion.

Montreal claims 70,000 Germans, Poles and Austrians within its limits, and this doesn't include Sam Lichtenhein's International league team.

The war brought a rift in the clouds for the hockey magnates. Fifteen hundred dollar bonuses have been marked down to $600.

It took Lichtenhein eight years to win in Ottawa, and now that the deed has been perpetrated Bob Webster can retire.

COMING TO COAST

BOBBY GENGE

Fort William, Nov. 3.—There may be a cut in hockey salaries for the approaching winter, but fortunately the reduction did not fall my way," stated Bobby Genge yesterday. The Fort William boy, who was the big noise at the coast last season, received his contract, and the amount of money for the season is exactly the same as he received for his services a year ago. Genge is highly pleased with his contract and is glad that he does not have to be included in the hold-outs.

He leaves here November 6 and will spend a few days in Winnipeg and Calgary before reporting to Lester Patrick at Victoria on November 15.

VICTORIA ELEVEN PLAY AT SEATTLE

League Will Pick Team at Tomorrow Night's Meeting; Clubs to Discuss Play

Seattle, Nov. 3.—Arrangements have been made by the local National soccer management to bring another team from Victoria to play in Seattle on Sunday, November 8. This eleven will be stronger than the one that was seen at Dugdale park a week ago, against the Celtics, as it will be composed of players from teams throughout the entire Vancouver island.

The directors of the Nationals realize that their team will require strengthening if these Canadians are to be held down, and an effort is being made to have the Carbonado-Celtic game, which is scheduled for the same date, postponed, so that some of their stars will be able to fill up the weak spots.

A meeting of the Victoria Football association will be held to-morrow night at the Ritz hotel, when the local body will choose a team for Sunday's match at Seattle. The Thistle-West match will come up for discussion, while both Baker and Rodgers will appear on the carpet for their clash on Saturday at Beacon Hill.

Fairfields had scored three goals and more in every game up till Saturday, when they only scored one.

Mundy, goalkeeper, and Aynon, centre forward, both last season with Sons, have signed for the Empires.

E. Bridges is playing a star game for the City.

H. Ope is playing a steady game at back for the Wests.

C.P.R. expect to win from the Wests Saturday in the cup ties.

Empires have two good inside lefts in D. Laity and T. Davies.

Fairfield have signed on Jimmy Ferris, centre half.

CANUCK HONORED

Toronto, Nov. 3.—Hon. Coach Joe Wright, of the Argonaut Rowing club, has been decorated with a commemorative medal by King Gustave V. of Sweden. The medal is awarded as an appreciation of Mr. Wright's interest and activities in rowing as exemplified by the competition of the Canadian crew (the Argonauts) in the Olympic regatta at Stockholm.

BONDS CHALLENGED

Two challenges were hurled at Joe Bonds following his knockout of Jack Root in the second round of their four-round bout at the Moose smoker at Tacoma on Thursday night. Tom Cowler, the big Nanaimo heavyweight, under the tow of "Mysterious" Billy Smith, was on the job and challenged the Tacoma boxer, while a deft was also thrust at the winner by Al Palmer, who is now working out at Seattle.

DUGDALE TO LOOK AFTER THE COAST

Seattle Owner Will Go to Omaha; Northwesterners Join Movie Players

Ed. Dugdale, owner of the Seattle Baseball Club, has decided to make the trip to Omaha next week, when the annual meeting of the National Association of Baseball Clubs will be held. The Northwestern League owners decided last September to have a representative at this gathering and owing to the inability of President Hughes to make the trip Dugdale will hold the Northwestern League vote in all matters. It is expected that a later start will be made by the Northwestern League clubs next spring, while the cutting of the season will also be discussed. Steps will be taken to protect the minor league against the Federals and it is expected that President Johnson, of the American League, will be on hand to put the plans of the National Commission before the smaller league magnates.

Martin Killaly, of Seattle, star centre fielder, is now a real actor. He and Eddie Fries, Seattle's right fielder, have joined the Essanay moving picture organization at Miles, Cal., according to a letter received in Seattle. Killaly is in the "prop" department regularly, but has been used in several of the plays now being worked up. Fries is a bookkeeper. Sundays they play ball with Broncho-Bill's team. They told Broncho they played once in a while.

"If you can make good," said Bill, "I'll give you a job on my team." They made good all right and are now regulars. Their team plays other clubs within a radius of 50 miles.

St. Louis Feds beat both the New York Giants and Chicago Cubs to Roy Corhan, the crack shortstop of the San Francisco Pacific Coast League club. Bill Joyce signed him up for Otto Stitt's club. Babe Borton, the former White Sox player who was with Portland this season, will also play with Fiedler Jones' team.

Medford, Ore., Nov. 3.—Under ideal weather conditions, 2,600 fans witnessed the All-Star-Americans defeat the All-Star Nationals at the Medford ball park yesterday afternoon by a score of 9 to 5. The features of the game were the blow-up of Tereau in the third inning, when the Americans slammed in six runs, and the running catch of Clarke's long fly by Walsh in the sixth.

Score: R. H. E. Americans 9 13 1 Nationals 5 9 3 Batteries—Mitchell and McAvoy; Tereau, Vaughn and Clarke.

AMATEUR UNION TO HOLD ANNUAL SOON

A. A. U. Must Consider Football Question at Coming Gathering in Toronto

A Vancouver writer handles the Amateur Athletic Union without gloves in discussing the problems that will come up at the annual meeting of the A. A. U. at Toronto next month. The article follows:

The A. A. U. of Canada are due to meet in Toronto on Dec. 6 of this year. There are a number of interesting points coming up before that body for discussion. The main point will again be the question of recognizing the Dominion Football association. The Amateur Union may be successful in again shelving the matter of football in Canada. The longer the union delays the football question the worse it will be for the Amateur Union of Canada. That the amateur body is losing control of football is very noticeable.

They have not been able to prevent seven provinces of Canada from affiliating with the D. F. A. In spite of these affiliations one does not hear of the Amateur Union placing any soccer players under the ban, or preventing them from competing in other sports. The question of football in Canada is too big for them, and unless the Amateur Union get in line very soon the D. F. A. may do the dictating to the Amateur Union instead of asking a working agreement from them.

The question of affiliation by the British Columbia Football association may be delayed for a little while longer, but it will be answered here, that it will answer the question itself very soon. The Provincial Amateur Union can not, to be consistent with their constitution, accept affiliation with football, and on record to do all in their power to bring about a working agreement with the Dominion Football association.

When the question was discussed by the Provincial union, the Provincial Amateur Union was right. Unless the A. A. U. of C. get down to business at their annual meeting the affiliation of the B. C. F. A. with the Provincial Amateur union will be a short-lived one. It is not to be forgotten that the football interests of British Columbia expressed themselves in no uncertain manner regarding the question of affiliation with the D. F. A. It is not expected that anything further will be done in British Columbia until after the annual meeting of the A. A. U. of C. is over. After that time the question will be taken up again. If the two associations can settle their differences, well and good. Which ever way it ends British Columbia football will surely affiliate with the Dominion Football association.

"What's a shade for if it isn't to decide a winner?" Welsh asks.

"Baseball games are won by one run as well as ten. A game of polo can be won by one-quarter of a point. Golf matches in which from 75 to 150 strokes are made by the contestants are often decided by single strokes.

Billiard matches are won by single points, and so are football games, after 22 men have struggled like demons for an hour. And very often the team that wins by the narrow margin has been outplayed.

Horse races are decided by a nose and running and boat races are won by steps and inches. In every line of sport except boxing there is a winner and a loser in nearly every contest, but when I outpointed Ritchie all the way the howl goes up that I should not have been given the championship because I only shaded him.

"I'm not trying to belittle Ritchie. He's a grand fellow and a clever boxer, but I think I've been done an injustice by the kicks over Referee Corri's decision."

Mr. Macan won the competition, though playing from scratch, with J. W. Morris, handicap 15, second and Harvey Combe, handicap 3, third. The latter covered the course in 74, an excellent score. Fifty-four players took part in the competition, the total entry receipts, with those of Macan's sweep, netting the Patriotic Fund $45.50.

It is announced that the Royal Oak Club has invited the Seattle and Victoria teams to play over its links on Sunday, while a party will also go over the Colwood Links. The official opening of this course will not be held until next spring.

HEAVY GALES DELAY

SOPHIA ON WAY HERE

Skagway Steamer Was 24 Hours Late Reaching Vancouver; Last Alaska Trip

Very heavy weather assailed the C. P. R. steamer Princess Sophia Capt. D. Robertson, on her southbound trip from Skagway and Prince Rupert with the result that she reached Vancouver this morning 24 hours behind schedule. The vessel reached Victoria late this afternoon and the C. P. R. is making arrangements to put her on the night run to Vancouver. She has made her last trip to the north until next spring. The Princess Sophia encountered very heavy southeast gales, together with drenching rain squalls. In Mill-bay and Queen Charlotte Sounds a heavy sea was running and the Sophia shipped considerable water over her bows. The Sophia had one of the roughest voyages that have fallen to the lot of a coasting steamer so far this winter.

The Skagway service will be maintained throughout the winter by the steamer Princess May. Since early in June the Sophia and the May have been providing a weekly service, sailing out of Victoria on Friday nights. In future a fortnightly schedule will be maintained.

Charlotte-Running.

Next spring will see the crack steamer Princess Charlotte operating between Victoria, Vancouver and Skagway. The C. P. R. is now advertising the excursions to be made next year and it is anticipated that more tourists will visit Skagway than ever before in the history of the place. Many Americans from the East will be coming to San Francisco to see the fair and it is expected that they will want to see Alaska while they are on the coast. The C. P. R. anticipates very heavy travel next summer not only to the north but on all its routes.

PRIBYLOFFS' SEAL

CATCH AT SEATTLE

Revenue Cutter Manning Arrives With Skins; to Divide Money Raised at Sale

Seattle, Nov. 3.—More than 2,500 seal and blue fox skins, valued at $200,000, were brought to Seattle by the United States revenue cutter Manning, Capt. F. G. Dodge commanding, which has returned to port from Behring Sea and Unalaska. The seal skins were received from the government rookeries on St. Paul and St. George Islands, forming the Pribyloff group, and will be sold by the treasury department, the proceeds being divided among the United States, Canada, Russia and Japan, in accordance with the terms of the international convention for the protection of the seal herds in Behring Sea.

Eighteen hundred seal skins were received from St. Paul Island and the rest from St. George. The blue fox shipment consists of 150 skins, gathered from both islands and also the property of the government. When the Manning reached port she had rolled up a grand total of 30,000 miles for the work of the season now closed. She arrived here in September after finishing her regular northern cruise, but was then sent to Unalaska to assist in bringing home the survivors of the wrecked revenue cutter Tahoma. Following her arrival at Unalaska she handled freight to the seal islands and loaded the shipment of skins. She then proceeded to Cape Sarichef, Unimak Island, where she picked up fifteen of the Tahoma's officers and sailors whom she brought to Seattle.

While at Cape Sarichef she suffered the loss of an Assistant Surgeon L. W. Jenkins and three sailors, who were drowned in a storm while returning to the cutter from the Sarichef lighthouse with Lightkeeper Luther Louks, who was ill. Louks also was drowned. The small boat in which the party was returning to the cutter was capsized. The lighthouse man was being taken aboard for treatment, but there was no hope for his recovery. Reports heretofore received made no mention of the fact that he was drowned in the mishap.

SHIP BROKERS HERE.

It is interesting to note that a firm of ship brokers has been established in Victoria, which will arrange for the chartering of steamships or sailing vessels. Leiser & Crocker have entered this field and the chartering of the British barque British Yeoman to load lumber at Genoa Bay for South Africa, on account of Findlay, Durham & Brodie, was arranged by this concern. The establishment in Victoria of a firm which is in direct touch with owners and charter markets is of great benefit to the port.

SHIDZUOKA ARRIVING

THIRTY HOURS LATE

Nippon Liner Will Not Dock From Yokohama Till Thursday Afternoon

Heavy weather must be retarding the progress of the inbound Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Shidzuoka Maru Captain Deguchi, in her voyage across the Pacific from Hongkong and Yokohama. A wireless message was received this morning by W. R. Dale, local agent of the line, from the master of the steamer in which he stated he would not reach William Head until Thursday afternoon. Ships which have arrived recently from the Orient reported fair passages, but bad weather has been expected, and it is believed that the Shidzuoka is getting a taste of it.

The Shidzuoka Maru sailed from Yokohama on time, October 21. She is the fastest ship of the fleet and always makes the passage in 14 days arriving at Victoria on Wednesday mornings. But on this voyage she will be about 30 hours late in docking, and nothing but a very heavy spell of weather could have thrown her so far off her schedule. Immediately after the Shidzuoka arrives off William Head she will obtain her pratique and be piloted up to her regular berth.

Has Much Cargo For Here.

Stowed in the holds of the Nippon liner are 900 tons of general freight for Victoria merchants. It is understood that she has a heavy shipment of Japanese oranges for this port. The ship will be berthed here about 12 hours.

PROGRESS BEING MADE

ON RUPERT'S DRYDOCK

Two Pontoons Now in Water; Five Others Are Nearly Ready for Launching

Splendid progress is being made on Prince Rupert's huge new shipbuilding plant and floating drydock. The contractors are pushing the work. Large gangs of men find permanent employment at the site, where the largest of this kind on the Pacific Coast is being constructed. Capt. Duncan McKenzie, master of the G. T. P. steamer Prince George, who was in town yesterday, paid a visit to Hays Creek, the scene of the activities, on his last trip to Prince Rupert. He says that the contractors are getting along splendidly with the work.

Two of the huge pontoons, which will be coupled together to form the floating drydock, are already in the water. Five other pontoons are now nearing completion and it is expected that they will be launched before the end of the year. Altogether there will be twelve pontoons, which when linked together will be capable of lifting a 20,000-ton ship. These pontoons are of massive construction. They are built of oak fir and steel. The pontoons are not caulked but are plugged with wedges, a new innovation, which is expected to bring about a more secure tightness of the pontoons. Workmen are now engaged in building the wings of the two pontoons now in the water.

On shore the shipbuilding plant is well on the way to completion. The great machine shops and other build-

HOME FROM LONG SURVEYING CRUISE IN NORTH

S. S. LILLOOET

Yesterday the Dominion hydrographic steamer Lillooet, Capt. Musgrave, arrived at Esquimalt. The vessel left here last April and has carried out most of her survey work in Hecate Strait and other northern waters.

While the longshoremen rush the cargo out of her holds, the Nippon liners are bringing heavy cargoes to this port at the present time and furnish quite a little work for the stevedores. The shipment of silk on the Shidzuoka is reported to be worth over a million dollars.

The Shidzuoka is bringing a full list of salmon and steamed salmon, about 45 will disembark at the outer wharves.

RESTORER FLIES U. S. FLAG.

Seattle, Nov. 3.—The cable steamer Restorer, which reached Seattle from the naval base at Esquimalt, B. C., on September 30 as a British bottom, is now flying the American flag over her hull. Soon after the arrival of the vessel at this port application for American registry was made by her owners and yesterday Capt. B. C. Combe, commander of the Restorer, was notified that the change had been authorized.

The British flag had been hauled down several days ago in anticipation of the change and the Stars and Stripes were run up by Capt. Combe, Chief Officer P. E. Hahn and Quartermaster J. C. Dennis, all British subjects.

JUTLANDIA LEAVES.

On October 21 the motor-ship Jutlandia of the Danish East Asiatic company, which is coming to Pacific Coast ports, was reported sailing from Greenock, Scotland. She is expected here early next month.

Mrs. Widgers' only lodger was an actor, and one night he presented her with two tickets to see him play the villain in the great drama, "All for Love." Spellbound, Mrs. Widgers and her daughter watched the villain pursue his wicked way through three acts. It was a great shock to Mrs. Widgers to find she had harboured such a villain beneath her roof. But worse was to come. In the last act the triumphant hero shot the villain through the heart, and he dropped dead in the paper show. "Oh, mother," cried Miss Widger, in a voice that was heard above the loud applause of the "gods," whatever shall we do. They've killed our lodger!

"I'm afraid you may think we are giving you a lot of fish this week, old man," said the genial host, as they sat down to dinner. "The fact is, my wife has got hold of what sounds like a capital device for removing a fish-bone stuck in the throat, and we want to see if it works."

FILLS PASSENGER LIST AT VICTORIA

Awa Maru Clearing for Orient With Big Complement of Travelers; Full Cargo

When the eight saloon and one hundred stowage passengers embark on the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Awa Maru, Capt. Hori, at this port this afternoon every berth and bunk on the ship will be utilized during the trans-Pacific passage on Oriental steamships continues exceedingly heavy and the agents of the Nippon line found it necessary to refuse a number of tickets for the Awa Maru.

Four missionaries, one Russian army officer, one Japanese and two traveling salesmen will be among the passengers who will embark here. Miss M. Menzie, Mrs. J. P. McKay and Mr. and Mrs. G. Eadie are from eastern Canada and are booked to Hongkong. They will find their mission field in the interior of China. S. Bickovsky has been ticketed to Kobe, Japan, from where he will proceed to Vladivostok and thence to headquarters. C. Mizol is going to Kobe and J. E. E. Bridge and A. Hoidal will leave the steamship at Shanghai.

No less than one hundred Chinese and Japanese from Victoria will make the passage in stowage. At Seattle the remainder of the saloon and third-class accommodation was sold out.

Carrying over 7,000 tons of cargo for her different ports of call, the Awa Maru is riding very low in the water. She has very heavy shipments of wheat, flour and fish and also carries much machinery, lumber, cigarettes, clothing and cotton.

The Awa Maru is expected to sail from Victoria at 5.30 o'clock this afternoon.

SWEDISH MOTORSHIPS MAY COME TO SOUND

Seattle, Nov. 3.—Provided a sufficient showing can be made in freight offerings, Seattle will have another fleet added to the foreign freight carriers now running to this port on regular schedule, according to announcement yesterday by the Seattle branch of W. R. Grace & Co. The Johnson Line of Sweden has placed four of its splendid motorships on a new route between Sweden and San Francisco via the canal and is ready to extend the service to Seattle. W. R. Grace & Co. have been appointed Pacific coast agents for the line and hope to make a showing that will justify the extension of the service to Seattle.

The first vessel of the Johnson fleet to be placed on the new route is the motorship Kronprinsessan Margareta, which will begin loading next month in Stockholm for the first voyage of the service.

The Kronprinsessan Margareta and the other three vessels to be put on the route are motorships of the most modern construction and equipment. All are of 1,500 tons deadweight capacity. The Johnson company is an old-established line and its new service to the coast is welcomed by shippers as opening up additional markets for coast products.

Those also suffer who stay at home. One man in the club smokeroom seemed uneasy and wriggled in his chair till his friends demanded an explanation. "I have a very loyal wife," said the saddened man. "A day or two since she received a request for old underclothing for the reservists. She sent all mine, and now I have nothing but new things, which worry me nearly to death. I have been sorely tempted to send my new things to the German army."

Sad Spectacle Learned Germans Are Making of Themselves

(Editorial in the New York Evening Post.)

To the untrained eye it is plain that Germany has suffered grievously since the beginning of the war in her reputation as a nation of wisdom and the abode of scientific inquiry into the truth of all matters. To all who have profited by her learning and the instruction of her great teachers, this is a sorrowful thing. But it is precisely the German teachers of to-day who are producing a most unpleasant impression on this side of the water in their efforts to win American public opinion for their cause. Nowhere is there any evidence of a desire to undertake an unbiased investigation of fact; nowhere proof of a philosophical examination of recent occurrences.

Logic is thrown to the winds. We are treated to a flood of rhetoric and of unsupported statements. The assertions of the allies are, being away from the allies, the assumption being that the Germans alone are capable of telling the truth in this crisis, and that from the rest of the world there comes nothing but falsehood.

The failure to deal with the fundamental moral questions from a detached, ethical point of view, may be the inevitable result of the state of patriotism that has swept over Germany, but it is none the less amazing. The world has a right to expect us to expect better things, even if it could not hope for calmness in such a national crisis.

It really seems as if some of the professors who have rushed into print to defend Germany's cause are doing it quite as much for the sake of the "iron mouth" of events has proved the untruth of the fictitious German defeats, consequently misrepresentation and calumny are all the more eagerly at work. But their statement is marked by total absence of logic.

Thus in the first sentence they deny what they admit in the last. As for their assertions in regard to France and Britain, it has been proved that France and Britain had resolved on such a trespass, and it has likewise been proved that Belgium had agreed to their doing so. It would have been suicide on our part not to have been beforehand.

What a shocking position for moralists, for teachers of ethics and religion to assume! They had much better fall back upon the highwayman's argument used by the German chancellor that he preferred the law of necessity to the law of justice.

Next we are told by our ninety-three men of light and learning that "it is not true that the combat against our so-called militarism is not (sic) a combat against our civilization, as our enemies hypocritically pretend it is. Were it not for German militarism, German civilization would long since have been extinct."

What are we to think of all the German teachings of philosophy and religion, if this is true? What kind of civilization is that which rests only upon force, and how valuable is it going to be in the long run? "Have faith in us," the appeal concludes. Faith, yes; but how can we have faith in their judgment hereafter?

We could cite many similar astonishing utterances from professors that have come direct to this newspaper, in which men of international reputation

GOING MAD FROM THE TERRIFIC PAIN

Prominent Merchant Thinks His Life Was Saved by "Fruit-a-lives"

Drysdale, Ont., June 15, 1913.

"I am a general storekeeper at the above address, and on account of the great 'Fruit-a-lives' I recommend them to my customers. They were a great boon to me. I can tell you, for about two years ago, I was laid up with vomiting and terrific pain at the base of my skull. The pain nearly drove me mad. Doctors feared it would turn to inflammation of the brain, but I took 'Fruit-a-lives' steadily until I was cured. I have gained fifteen pounds since taking 'Fruit-a-lives,' and I verily believe they saved me from a disastrous illness."

accept as facts matters for which no proof whatever is offered or offered. Their scientific researches in any such manner (they would be promptly expelled from their chairs. But it is not only the professors in Germany who are injuring their cause. The British government, which was released from Harvard, with the stipulation that he devote all his time to writing and speaking for Germany.

There is Prof. Kuno Franke, of Harvard, who only a few years ago he was writing books showing a complete hostility to Kaiser, bureaucracy, and militarism. Now Germany in his eyes is almost beyond criticism.

Then there is Prof. Eugen Kuhnemann, an exchange professor from Breslau. In an address in Boston, the other day, his assertion that Germany had violated Belgian territory, but had to do it, called forth laughter from his audience and a pointed remark from the chairman as to the professor's irrationality. To this the professor promptly replied that "Americans did not seem to understand that life was always irrational."

That Americans could only hope to understand Germany if we were situated in America as Germany is in Europe was another of his contentions. In this crisis our learned German friends seem to fail to understand that the American is a reasoning animal who can recognize a logical absurdity when he sees one, and knows how to differentiate between an assertion and a fact.

"Germany," says Professor Kuhnemann, is "very much satisfied with the state civilization has reached within her country," and he adds: "German militarism is the concentrated power of self-defence against a world of enemies."

Might her learned men not now take time to inquire whether all this "civilization" that surrounds itself with a world of enemies?

A RAINBOW'S TEMPERATURE. The sun's rays are more complex than they appear. In the rainbow, Nature gives us an impalpable solar spectrum. A much better one can be formed in the laboratory by allowing a beam of sunlight to pass through a spectral slit and thence upon a glass prism. By this means the band of spectrum colors is formed out of the white sunlight, and may be brought to a sharp focus by a lens or concave mirror.

Neither the eye nor the photographic plate can accurately estimate the relative amounts of energy in the several parts of the spectrum, but the bolometer does. The bolometer consists of a pair of vertical plates of platinum, each about half an inch long, 1-250 inch wide and 1-1000 inch thick. The plates are blackened upon their front surfaces with lampblack. One is hidden from view by a screen, the other is exposed. When the rays of the spectrum fall upon the bolometer, the exposed plate absorbs them and becomes warmer than its hidden neighbor. The two plates form part of an electrical circuit, called a Wheatstone's bridge, which contains a highly sensitive galvanometer. As soon as the exposed plate of the bolometer is warmed, a small electric current is caused to flow through the galvanometer, and to deflect its magnetic-needle system. This magnetic-needle system is suspended by a fibre of rock-crystal 1-15000 inch in diameter, and it carries a tiny mirror no larger than the head of a pin. Thus the tiny magnets and the little mirror are free to turn horizontally under the slightest force. A beam of light is reflected from this mirror upon a photographic plate which is moved vertically by clockwork. When the solar spectrum is moved along from the violet toward the red, the warning of the bolometer causes the spot of light reflected by the galvanometer to move horizontally across the photographic plate, but the simultaneous vertical motion of the plate draws the record out into a line called a bolograph.

The bolometer measures the spectrum, far beyond what the eye sees in the violet end. In the red it is a curious thought that if the eye could see these invisible rays they would seem to possess colors unknown to us. What these would be the reader must imagine for himself.—C. G. Abbott, in Harper's Magazine.

Lydell, the British high explosive, is called from Lydd, in Kent, where it was first made. It is believed to be a mixture of fused stearic acid and gun-cotton, and is of a bright yellow color. It is very safe to handle as it requires an extremely violent blow to detonate it. Inside the charge of the shell is a powerful detonator. Melinite, used in the French army and navy, and Shimose, used in the Japanese services, are practically identical. Melinite, another French explosive, of which much has been heard recently, is very similar. All these preparations burn quietly when lighted.

Appeal Court Opens—Chief Justice Macdonald and Hon. Justice Irving, Martin, Galloway and McPhillips, of the court of appeals, went over to the mainland last night to take the bench of the November sitting of the court, which opened in Vancouver this forenoon.

Starts Suit—An incident which occurred at the city market yard some time ago has occasioned legal action, in which two of the city's officers are sued by Edward Greenwood, William Dalby, market clerk, alleging that Greenwood was endeavoring to act as an auctioneer without a license, called in Sgt. Wright to eject him from the yard. Greenwood appears to have been placed in the cells, and for this act he is claiming damages for false imprisonment, naming the market clerk and the officer as defendants. The papers have been referred to the city solicitor, F. A. McDiarmid, is acting for the plaintiff.

Spoke of Tour—A very pleasant and profitable hour was spent by the Emmanuel Baptist Young People's union last evening when Dr. Ernest Hall delivered a lecture on the subject "From Shanghai to Cairo." An insight into the present condition of the government of China was given and the speaker described an interesting banquet which was given him by a prominent member of the Chinese Reform party. The latter part of the lecture was illustrated by limelight views and concluded with a description of the pyramids to indicate how they were used in determining the times and seasons. During the evening Mme. Burnett rendered "My Captain's on the Bridge," a song composed by the lecturer during his recent trip.

Apple Days—November 12, 13 and 14 have been set aside as Apple days in Victoria. Instead of a full week, as was originally planned. This period will be observed in the making of a special and organized effort to encourage the fruit growing industry in British Columbia, and to educate the general public to the excellence of the home-grown product.

R. M. Winslow, provincial horticulturist, has already circulated the fruit growers of the province and it is assured that there will be no lack of apples of the best type when the time comes round. Every effort is also being made to make Friday, November 13, a real apple-market day in Victoria.

The public market has already become a very popular institution, and there is every reason to believe that island growers will take advantage of the opportunity to bring their best fruit before the market on that day.

BUNGALOW COMPANY SUES

Seeks to Recover on Note Given by One of Its Customers Who Received Dwelling He Purchased.

This morning Judge Lampman began the hearing of the action of the Bungalow Construction Co., Ltd., against Ray Anderson, a suit on a note for $800 given a year ago. There was a counter-claim for failure to protect defendant on a mortgage, Oscar C. Bass is acting for the plaintiff company.

C. B. S. Phelan, for the defendant, raised the preliminary objection that the company is not competent to sue, and he stated that R. F. Taylor, manager of the Colonial Trust Co., Ltd., the liquidator, had told him that he had not authorized the action.

Mr. Bass held that as the action had been commenced last March, before the company went into liquidation, the objection did not lie, and he was upheld in this.

Casey G. Walsh, president and general manager of the company at the time the action was launched, stated that the company sold a bungalow on Carnes street to Mr. Anderson for $5,000, but he became delinquent in his payments, and an arrangement was made for a mortgage of $2,000 to the B. C. Life Insurance company, of which defendant is provincial manager.

On November 19 last, Anderson reconveyed the house to the plaintiff company, and gave them his note for $500 on which the present suit is based.

In cross-examination Mr. Walsh stated that the house stands on a 40-foot lot, which he valued at $1,200, and the house at $2,500. He denied that the note was asked for by him to make a balance-sheet look better, and insisted that Anderson was anxious to get out of his bargain and offered the note. He admitted that the company had not entirely protected Anderson as to the mortgage, and that the B. C. Life had entered a suit against Anderson, the company and the Bank of Nova Scotia.

He had no order of the court nor written authority from the liquidator to go on with this action, but he had got Mr. Taylor's approval directly last night and implied this morning when he got the books of the company from him.

A. S. Bonnell, who was general manager of the company when the sale took place, corroborated the evidence of Mr. Walsh as to the terms and as to the negotiations, which resulted in the giving of the note.

The case is in progress this afternoon.

MOUNT DOUGLAS SITE MEETS WITH APPROVAL

Aldermen Looking for New Cemetery; Royal Oak Land Also Highly Recommended

In the party which to-day visited a number of the sites offered for a city cemetery were Mayor Stewart, Aldermen McNeill and Alderman McCandless, a member of the cemetery committee, in one motorcar and Aldermen Sargent and Dilworth, members of the committee, and Alderman Porter in a second car. In spite of the rain, which poured throughout the journey, the party gave careful consideration to the various claims advanced for the different properties which have been offered to the council.

That most favored on all points is the rolling land, below Mount Douglas, on the west side of Cedar Hill. It has only a few oaks upon it and about 12 acres have been offered by the trustees of the Todd estate. There is a house nearby which is also suggested as part of the purchase, but it belongs to another owner. This land can be obtained at 1,000 an acre. Across the road is a property 62 acres in extent, which is under lease. It can be obtained at a similar figure per acre. Water would have to be found at this site, but it is understood that wells sunk in the district are abundantly supplied. The property is on the four-mile circle from the city.

The second in general favor was the Grand property at Royal Oak, adjoining the Victoria & Sidney railway station, where up to 100 acres can be obtained at about $1,200 an acre. City water from Elk Lake is at a convenient distance from this property, the land is easy of access by the citizens of Victoria and it is well drained naturally. The aldermen were greatly impressed by the possibilities of this property. It is five miles and a half from the city.

Another property in the same neighborhood highly commended is on the East Saanich road, half a mile from Royal Oak hotel. It is offered at $800 an acre and has but little rock upon it. City water from Elk Lake is also conveniently near this place. The site is half a mile from the nearest station.

Another property considered by the visitors is part of Breckford farm, that nearest Mount Douglas, belonging to Dr. Tolmie. Some of the land is not yet in pasture, but the land has the advantages of good location, convenience of access, and a fine class of soil.

Several other properties which have been offered on the Saanich peninsula were not considered, the applications of the owners being regarded as too high.

There is a property at Colwood, eight miles from the city. It has some timber upon it and is offered at $125 an acre. If the committee decides that its distance from the city is not too great a visit will be paid to it.

In connection with the grant property, Alderman McNeill stated that the payment could be deferred for two years, provided interest was paid the while.

Alderman Sargent, chairman of the committee, carefully explained all the features of each property to his colleagues. On returning to the city hall the mayor said the committee would meet shortly to consider its report.

GILLETT'S LYE EATS DIRT

For Roberts have each offered to pay the fees of ten men. R. T. Elliott, K.C., will pay for twenty-five, Messrs. Moore and Whittington for twenty-seven, and Mayor Stewart for twenty-eight.

The association reported this morning that there had been a splendid response from the soldiers themselves, while a number of old Y. M. C. A. members have applied for a renewal of membership.

CHRISTMAS GIFT OF TOBACCO.

"It's only a little gift and thought for our men so far away. Who fight for the freedom and honor of the motherland to-day."

It will help to pass the weary hours of men who wait for the foe. Be a source of happiness and joy. Ere the bullets lay them low.

It will help to assuage the hunger of men who wait for supplies. Will numb the pain of the wounded man. Who on the battlefield lies.

What though the bullets round him whistled, And cold and wet be the day, If he has his pipe, match and pipe, The soldier's heart is gay.

So we'll send our gifts with warmest wishes, Of the sea at Christmas time, To the men who are bravely fighting, For the sake of Auld Lang Syne.

The ladies associated with the above training are as follows: Mrs. George Jay, Mrs. W. M. Johnston and Miss King, intending to contribute to the fund.

Groups at the front in time for Christmas.

Two Fatherless Children at Ganges Harbor Send Their Savings for the Fund.

The Belgian relief fund seems to lose nothing in its interest for the citizens as time continues, and there is daily a considerable contribution to the collection of warm clothing and bedding which is being sent out in periodic consignments from the city to the Belgians who have suffered through the war.

To-day a man came in from Ganges Harbor to bring in a subscription from two little fatherless children who had voluntarily given their entire savings for the even more unfortunate little Belgian children. Another very much appreciated gift came from a lady in the city who made nine boys' suits and left them at the rooms. No direct acknowledgment being possible owing to the fact that neither name nor address were left with the gift, the committee wishes to thank the generous giver herewith.

Consul Terry has received a letter from Mr. Frohman, the honorary treasurer of the Belgian relief fund, Montreal, gratefully acknowledging the consignments of clothing, and thanking the citizens of Victoria, through him, for their efforts in response to the appeal sent out. Shipments, it is urged in the letter, should be made as water-tight as possible, as the committee in Montreal, much as it would like to, is unable to attend separately to all the donations before shipping them for Europe.

BOTH HELD LIABLE

Husband and Wife Alike Responsible for Payment of Debt Due to Grocer.

The responsibility of a husband for the household debts contracted by the wife came up in the course of a county court trial this forenoon, when George W. Clarke sued Christian Holt and Elizabeth Holt for a sum of $54.05, being the balance of an account for groceries supplied. P. J. Stapcooke, K.C., appeared for the plaintiff and J. Percival Walls for the defendants.

Mrs. Clarke proved the debt, the delivery of the groceries to Mrs. Holt and the acceptance by her of an account which acknowledged the receipt of $100 on account.

Mr. Walls asked for a non-suit, as far as the husband was concerned, on the ground that the account was contracted by the wife, who had received from him from week to week funds for the running of the house, which, he argued, was a fulfilling of the husband's duties.

Holt stated that he brought home his wages and gave them to his wife, and that was all he knew about it. He knew nothing whatever about the account.

Mr. Stapcooke argued that there was a joint liability of the husband, just as there was of principal and agent, and the court took the same view. As the plaintiff was satisfied with a judgment against the wife the court so decided, and dismissed the case as against the husband without costs, but at the same time said that if the plaintiff had desired judgment would have been given against both.

BATTALION TAKING

FORM VERY RAPIDLY

Drafting of Men From Local Corps Completed To-morrow; Outsiders Arrive

The first of the outside contingents for the second expeditionary force arrived in Victoria last evening and marched out to the concentration camp at the Willows. These were twenty men from Courtenay. To-day twenty-five are to arrive from Nanaimo, and it is expected that 225 from the Kootenays will get in late this afternoon or to-morrow morning. These are mainly men of the Rocky Mountain Rangers, whose headquarters are at Nelson.

Men of the Kamloops company are expected to be joining them when the train passes through that city. The Prince Rupert and Skeena men will get in on Sunday morning.

To-morrow the drafting of the men from the city regiments will be completed, and except for the northern detachment, the battalion will then be practically organized as a body, only a few details remaining. By the end of the week it will be thoroughly officered and organized into companies, and it will then be ready to undergo training as a unit.

The use of the drill hall in which the men have been in camp for a couple of months and have been busy on the parade ground and at the rifle ranges they are as fine a lot of soldiers as can be found anywhere, and the process of moulding them into a regiment will take but a very short time.

There was a large turn-out of the companies of the Victoria volunteer guard last evening at the orderly room, Douglas street, when company drill was engaged in. This evening Company D, that recruited from among the Orange lodges, will parade for the same purposes. Recruits are being received into the ranks of the guard steadily, and the total strength of the guard is swelling to large proportions.

IMPROVING SIGNS IN LOCAL STOCK MARKET

With Different Issues Now Absorbed Offerings Were Raised To-day

The list held up well in the face of general lethargy, and several weak elements that for some days have dampened feelings were eradicated, thereby improving prices to a degree.

In Portland Canal, Standard Lead and Coronation offerings were higher on the close, indicating less of a disposition on the part of holders of different stocks to sacrifice their lines at such raised levels.

The local market has been cleaned up of many blocks of stocks in the last week or so that served previously to derange the list.

More growing interest attaches to Portland Tunnels since their important strike, and now that issues physically affected by such strikes have been brought to a speculative standstill, this stock is seeking its natural position in the market.

Calgary advance has been put off for some days and nothing is heard as to the course of oil prices there.

PROJECTOR OF A MISSILE WHICH MAKES A HOLE IN THE GROUND BIG ENOUGH TO BURY FIVE HORSES, BUT IS UNABLE TO DEPRESS THE BRITISH SOLDIER: ONE OF THE GERMAN SIEGE-GUNS—NICKNAMED "JACK JOHNSON," "BLACK MARIA," OR "COAL-BOX"

In an official account of the fighting on the Aisne issued by the press bureau it was stated recently: "The British soldier is a difficult person to impress or depress, even by immense shells filled with high explosives which detonate with terrific violence and form craters large enough to act as graves for five horses. The German howitzer shells are eight to nine inches in calibre, and an impact they send up columns of greasy black smoke. On account of this they are irreverently dubbed 'coal-boxes,' 'Black Marias,' or 'Jack Johnsons' by the soldiers. Men who take things in this spirit are, it seems, likely to throw out the calculations based on loss of moral so carefully framed by the German military philosophers." A later press bureau report speaks of the Germans "giving the village of Paissy a taste of the 'Jack Johnsons'." The boxer, Jack Johnson, is called in America "the Big Smoke"—hence probably the nickname for the gun. The soldiers are Austrians who, it is said, took German siege-guns for use against Antwerp.

DOMINION TRUST WANTS LIQUIDATOR WITH FUNDS TO PAY OFF DEPOSITORS

Directors Issue Statement of Assets and Liabilities; Committee is Appointed by Shareholders; Full Investigation of Affairs is Asked

Vancouver, Nov. 3.—In order to forestall the efforts of the petitioning creditors and depositors to secure a public investigation and winding up of the Dominion Trust company, under an outside liquidator, the shareholders of the Dominion Trust company at their special meeting—yesterday, passed a resolution to go into voluntary liquidation. It was pointed out to the assembled shareholders that as a result of the proceedings before Chief Justice Hunter earlier in the day that the other petitions had been tied-up for a week. Between now and the time the petitions come before the court again, the shareholders' special committee will endeavor to find a liquidator with funds enough to pay off the depositors, if appointed, and will endeavor to have their own man appointed as liquidator.

The chief inducement held out to the shareholders to follow this course was that a liquidator of their own selection would be able after paying the depositors off, to hold the assets together until such time as the real estate and investment market improved and enabled the assets to be disposed of at prices which would give a substantial return to the general creditors and shareholders. If an outside liquidator is appointed, it was represented, the immediate work would be to realize on the assets for whatever they would bring, and the opinion was expressed by the speakers that under such circumstances there might be nothing left for the shareholders. Many of whom are liable for shares not as yet fully paid up.

The committee appointed to select a liquidator consists of the directors together with H. W. Levens, Jonathan Rogers, Robert Macpherson, William Savage and T. T. Langlois.

This decision of the shareholders now makes three distinct and separate rival parties in the field, each of which is endeavoring to nominate the liquidator. At present C. R. Drayton, managing director of the Vancouver Financial Corporation, is acting as provisional liquidator on a petition presented by J. W. Margolis, a depositor, acting on behalf of himself and other depositors. His appointment was made ex parte, and will have to be confirmed after argument with all the rival parties present, before becoming of permanent appointment. Part of the avowed purpose of Mr. Margolis in seeing the appointment of Mr. Drayton as liquidator is to investigate alleged defalcations and breaches of trust in the management of the company.

The second party is that of the creditors, led by Albert Maxton, a wealthy lace manufacturer of Calais, France, who has a claim against the company as his trustee in a land transaction in which the company is said to have made sale of land as Maxton's trustee for a price of $120,000. Many other unnamed wealthy creditors in England are understood to be behind the application, including Sir Gilbert Parker, M. P., the novelist, who, through a member of the company's advisory board, is said to have been surprised at the sudden collapse of the head office management. Sir Gilbert Parker is understood to have $15,000 on deposit with the company, in addition to having purchased $25,000 worth of shares. Mr. Maxton has asked for the appointment of the Standard Trust company or George E. Winter, or any other fit and proper person or company as liquidator in order to investigate the affairs of the Dominion Trust company.

Among the committee of shareholders appointed yesterday are several who are anxious to have a full investigation of the alleged discrepancies and defalcations, and sensational disclosures are expected to be made at the adjourned meeting to be held on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

"We will spare nobody," said one of the committee.

At the meeting yesterday afternoon which was presided over by President W. H. P. Clubb, several of the shareholders showed an anxiety in regard to the alleged defalcations. At first it was stated that the late W. R. Arnold was indebted to the company in a sum of $114,000, but after further questioning it was admitted that there were discrepancies in the accounts, and that the sum was much larger. Later it was stated that a sum of $243,000 of the company's funds had been misapplied, but it was not stated in what manner or by whom. It was further stated, in answer to a question by a shareholder, that one of the directors had borrowed up to $185,000, but of this sum all but $26,000 was secured.

In a statement handed out to the press by the directors after the meeting, it was stated: "It appeared that liabilities to the public amount to $2,465,236.25, which includes depositors, $243,000; trust and administration funds, $118,239.30; mortgage loan in process of completion, $186,239.77; and sum due to bank, $259,549.92. Against this there are assets of a book value of $5,963,249.19, which includes office premises, safe-deposit vault, etc., $666,761.71; secured loans and mortgages, etc., $1,962,158.81; bonds and debentures, $243,165.84; shares in other companies, etc., $294,796.82; advances to estates, $551,486.39; owing by clients, insurance premiums, etc., $130,907.52.

"The directors presented a report showing the steps they have taken in connection with the company's affairs following the death of the late managing director, Mr. W. R. Arnold, owing to their being unable to get any assistance from his assistants, and owing to the short time at their disposal in which to make any arrangements, it had been decided to appoint Mr. C. R. Drayton as superintendent and to call for the stipulated notice in connection with the withdrawal of deposits. This it was hoped would give the company time to make the necessary financial arrangements, but the directors regretted to report that they were unable to arrange this in the short time at their disposal. Since Mr. Arnold's death investigation into the affairs of the company had been taking place, which shows that the finances of the company were somewhat involved. There were also a number of loans and other investments which had been severely criticized, but in regard to each it was in the meantime impossible to make any definite statement, as the auditors had not been able to complete their report.

"Owing to the failure of the company to secure financial assistance, two applications have been made to the court for a winding up order, and it was necessary for the shareholders to consider whether a creditor for a small sum should have control of the winding up proceedings, or whether the shareholders, who had much larger interests at stake, should conduct these proceedings themselves in the event of no other satisfactory resolution being found.

The total number of $100 shares

sold by the company, is said to be 25,600. These had been sold in all parts of Canada and Great Britain, frequently at a high premium owing to the high rates of dividend they returned, and the strong position the company was supposed to occupy. Some of the stock changed hands at as high as $155 per share. The following shows the manner in which the shares have been distributed:

Province	Number of Shares	Shareholders
British Columbia	3,750	267
Alberta	2,250	197
Saskatchewan	880	75
Manitoba	1,100	64
Ontario	1,000	48
Quebec	3,885	161
New Brunswick	618	53
Nova Scotia	546	47
Prince Edward Island	2,154	67
United States	2,423	83
Britain and foreign	2,946	115
Totals	25,600	837

The hardship brought about by the collapse of the company was brought home during the very time the meeting was in progress. Mixed up in the crowd of shareholders thronging the corridors of the company's offices was an aged widow trying to find some of the company's officials.

"It's a shame," she cried out. "They have got my money and now they are holding up some interest that was paid on a mortgage. I sent their money. It was paid them to give to me, and now I can't get it."

Another lady who was refused admission to the meeting had all her savings in the company. In addition her husband was a shareholder. She came armed with a proxy from her husband, but was refused admission to the meeting on the technical ground that the proxy had not been registered 72 hours before the meeting started.

Among the stories of hard luck told by the little crowd of depositors who waited for news of the shareholders' decision was that of a man who had arrived here from the old country a few days before the company closed its doors. He had placed the whole amount of his savings, $10,000, in the care of the company until he could find a farm or business to put it into, only to find that he could not get it back again. In another case an army reservist who was called to the front left his savings account amounting to $35,000 for the sustenance of his aged mother. This sum is locked up now.

Another petition, praying for the appointment of an outside liquidator to wind up the affairs of the Dominion Trust company was filed this morning in the supreme court by a depositor, Thomas Hembrough.

A request is made to the court to appoint the Westminster Trust company as liquidator. Like the other petitions it is made returnable on Monday.

WINNIPEG PASTOR WILL GO TO NORTH VANCOUVER

Winnipeg, Nov. 3.—The important feature of the sessions of the Winnipeg Presbytery, held this morning, was the announcement of a call to Rev. J. S. Mudge, of Point Douglas Presbytery, to take charge of the North Vancouver Presbytery church. A large delegation from the Point Douglas church attended to ask Rev. Mr. Mudge to remain in Winnipeg.

The pastor of Point Douglas, notwithstanding the pleas of his parishioners, made a very touching tribute to the people of his church, who have stood by and helped in every way to make Point Douglas church one of importance in Presbyterian circles of the city, but was very decisive in his statement that he would accept the call and that on November 15 he would preach his farewell sermon at Point Douglas church.

COLE AWARDED CLAIM BY COURT OF APPEAL

Suit for Commission in Sale of Indian Reserve Goes Against Read

Vancouver, Nov. 3.—Joseph Cole, a half-breed from Mission, was this morning given judgment by the court of appeal for a $20,000 commission for his services in the sale of the Kettle Lake Indian reserve. The judgment is against Hamilton Read, barrister, who received half the commission of nearly $80,000 given by the provincial government. Their lordships, with Mr. Justice Martin dissenting, reversed the decision of Chief Justice Hunter.

In his evidence at the trial, Cole stated that he had been informed by several of the Kettle Lake Indians that they would like to sell their reserve, and he had communicated the information to Mr. Read, who was at that time an employee of the legal firm of Bowser, Read & Wallbridge. He said that Mr. Read told him to go ahead and if he succeeded in securing an option for him, he would give him $20,000. He claimed that he induced the Indians to agree to a sale of their property, but at the final meeting on the reserve was refused admission, and the agreement to give him commission was repudiated by Read.

Read's evidence was that he had been engaged in a private venture in trying to get an option on the reserve, knowing from hearsay that the government desired to purchase it. Leaving that Magistrate Alexander had also been engaged in trying to get an option he had arranged with him that if Mr. Alexander put no obstacles in his way he would give him half of whatever he made. Read said that after he had failed in his own efforts he agreed to assist Alexander, who in turn agreed to give him half of the commission.

The total purchase price paid for the Kettle Lake reserve by the government was $200,000.

BAD OPERATION AVOIDED

By Timely Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Sowers' Own Statement.
Hodgdon, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—Mrs. HAYWARD SOWERS, Hodgdon, Maine.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

ONE MONTH LONGER FOR REBATE ON TAXES

City Council Extends Period Until Nov. 30; Fisgard Street Paving.

Until November 30 the citizen who pays his general taxes will be able to secure the advantage of a rebate of one-sixth. The period of rebate was extended by the city council last evening.

Efforts to vary the amount of rebate during the period failed.

The extension of time was made on the initiative of Alderman McNeill, chairman of the finance committee, who introduced an amendment to the annual revenue by-law, notice of which motion was given on Saturday.

The motion that there be an extension was carried without any discussion, but there was considerable discussion as to how long the extension should be.

In introducing the amendment to the by-law Alderman McNeill observed that the citizens in some quarters complained that they had been induced to make the payment promptly without knowledge of the proposed alteration.

However, this proposal would aid the city council, and also the smaller ratepayers would be given a second chance to secure the rebate.

He hoped also that the council at some future time would consider the desirability of rearranging the method of giving rebate. The present method favored the rich man.

It would be in the interests of the mercantile classes.

The mayor opposed any extension of the rebate period beyond November 30.

Alderman Bell urged that there be a graded scale of rebate. That would reward those who had struggled to pay promptly.

Alderman Okei supported Alderman Bell's argument, while Alderman Dilworth pleaded for those who had made sacrifices to find the money.

Alderman Sargent did not think it to be a good policy to confuse the public mind and add to bookkeeping difficulties by having several rates of rebate.

The amendment to the by-law was then agreed to. It extends the period during which a rebate of one-sixth will be given until November 30.

With regard to Fisgard street paving and its width, the city solicitor reported to the council that he saw no objection to altering the width of the paving to make it 34 feet instead of 46 as the by-law now provides.

The precaution of having the approval of the lieutenant-governor-in-council should be taken. To avoid difficulty in securing that sanction he suggested a petition favorable to the change by interested owners.

The First Presbyterian church trustees wrote approving immediate action, while the mayor said a deputation which had waited on him yesterday morning had expressed a desire to have the street paved as at present proposed, 42 feet in one part and 46 feet for another block. The deputation did not wish to run the risk of defeat by calling for the petition to be submitted again for the owner's approval.

The matter was laid over for one week to give the owners an opportunity to indicate their opinion in the form of a petition.

Mrs. Bliden: "I suppose you feel the business depression caused by the war?" Mrs. Grimley: "It's just terrible, my dear! We're still using our last year's motor car!"

VISIT SITES

Members of City Council Look Over Lots Proposed for New Cemetery.

Since it became public information that the city council was looking round the Saanich peninsula for a cemetery site, the applications and offers of property owners have continued to reach the council. Two more were mentioned at the council meeting last evening, one site being part of Dr. S. F. Tolmie's well known estate on the Cedar Hill cross road.

From the number of applications which have been offered, it is clear there will not be any difficulty in securing a suitable site. Proximity to the city, good drainage and the possibility of clearing the land easily are characteristics desired by the council.

Any proposal the council makes must be ratified by by-law and hence a by-law will be submitted to the citizens at the next annual election.

This forenoon a civic committee visited three sites with a view to examining them and being in a position to discuss their relative merits intelligently, those going out being Mayor Stewart, Aldermen Sargent, chairman of the cemetery committee, McNeill, Porter, McAndrews and Dilworth.

The committee visited the sites offered at Royal Oak, Cedar Hill and Cadboro bay, and looked them all over carefully, returning to the city shortly after noon.

ROCK BAY BRIDGE.

Victoria Gas Company Wishes Draw-span Kept in Working Order.

The swing span at Rock Bay bridge, which has not been opened for ten years, formed the subject of a letter from Bernard Robertson, Hesterman & Tait to the city council last evening.

The firm writing on behalf of the Victoria Gas company, whose property adjoins Rock Bay. The letter pointed out that in the repairs of the Rock Bay bridge the span was being abandoned, and the solicitors threatened application for an injunction unless the span was replaced in position.

The mayor stated that the span had not been opened for ten years. The council decided to have a report from the solicitor and the engineer before taking further action.

No Trouble to Keep Skin Free From Hairs

(The Modern Beauty.)

There is no need for any woman to countenance superfluous hairs, because with a paste made by mixing some powdered delatone with water it is easy to get rid of them. The paste is applied for 2 or 3 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed. This treatment will rid the skin of hair without leaving a blemish, but care should be taken to see that you get real delatone.

Some years ago, when former American Speaker Cannon was a plain member, he took some of his constituents to dine with him at a rather good hotel in Washington. It was in the fall and Mr. Cannon ate very heartily of that American edible, Indian corn; in fact, almost his entire dinner consisted of corn. The westerner looked at him and said: "Say, Mr. Cannon, what does it cost you to board here?" "About $5 a day," said Mr. Cannon. "I'll be darned," drawled his constituent, "if I don't think it would be cheaper for you to board at a livery stable!"
